Learning to Read; a Manual for Teachers Using the Aldine Readers Frank Ellsworth Spaulding, Catherine Turner Bryce, 1918

What Research Really Says about Teaching and Learning to Read Stephen B. Kucer, 2008 This groundbreaking collection examines official views of the teaching and learning of reading those endorsed by the National Reading Panel No Child Left Behind and Reading First initiatives and challenges the assumptions on which the views are based Together the contributors offer an alternate vision to currently accepted ideas and practices in reading education What Research Really Says about Teaching and Learning to Read provides historical context for the current reading debates and then examines forms of resistance to existing policies The contributors with support of NCTE's Commission on Reading synthesize a broad range of research concerning the nature of reading how it is learned and its development across the grades They examine specific curricular and instructional strategies for reading development in children and adolescents They also offer a powerful decision making matrix to help evaluate reading curricula as well as a research based collection of best practices Recognizing that classrooms are becoming more ethnically racially and linguistically diverse this pioneering book addresses the needs of multilingual students and of readers who struggle under current national reading policies The contributors highlight the transformative power of professional development and celebrate success stories in the era of No Child Left Behind and Reading First From publisher description

Who's Doing the Work? Jan Miller Burkins, Kim Yaris, 2016 In their follow up to Reading Wellness Jan Burkins and Kim Yaris explore how some traditional scaffolding practices may actually rob students of important learning opportunities and independence Who's Doing the Work suggests ways to make small but powerful adjustments to instruction that hold students accountable for their own learning Educators everywhere are concerned about students whose reading development inexplicably plateaus as well as those who face challenging texts without applying the strategies they've been taught When such problems arise our instinct is to do more But when we summarize text before reading or guide students when they encounter difficult words are we leading them to depend on our support If we want students to use strategies independently Jan and Kim believe that we must question the ways our scaffolding is getting in the way Next generation reading instruction is responsive to students needs and it develops readers who can integrate reading strategies without prompting from instructors In Who's Doing The Work Jan and Kim examine how instructional mainstays such as read aloud shared reading guided reading and independent reading look in classrooms where students do more of the work Classroom snapshots at the end of each chapter help translate the ideas in the book into practice Who's Doing the Work offers a vision for adjusting reading instruction to better align with the goal of creating independent proficient and joyful readers
