Reflection Revisited:

The Centered Mind Peter Carruthers, 2015 The Centered Mind offers a new view of the nature and causal determinants of both reflective thinking and more generally the stream of consciousness Peter Carruthers argues that conscious thought is always sensory based relying on the resources of the working memory system This system has been much studied by cognitive scientists It enables sensory images to be sustained and manipulated through attentional signals directed at midlevel sensory areas of the brain When abstract conceptual representations are bound into these images we consciously experience ourselves as making judgments or arriving at decisions Thus one might hear oneself as judging in inner speech that it is time to go home for example However our amodal non sensory propositional attitudes are never actually among the contents of this stream of conscious reflection Our beliefs goals and decisions are only ever active in the background of consciousness working behind the scenes to select the sensory based imagery that occurs in working memory They are never themselves conscious Drawing on extensive knowledge of the scientific literature on working memory and related topics Carruthers builds an argument that challenges the central assumptions of many philosophers In addition to arguing that non sensory propositional attitudes are never conscious he also shows that they are never under direct intentional control Written with his usual clarity and directness The Centered Mind will be essential reading for all philosophers and cognitive scientists interested in the nature of human thought processes

A Rhetoric of Reflection Kathleen

Yancey, 2016-08-15 Reflection in writing studies is now entering a third generation Dating from the 1970s the first generation of reflection focused on identifying and describing internal cognitive processes assumed to be part of composing The second generation operating in both classroom and assessment scenes in the 1990s developed mechanisms for externalizing reflection making it visible and thus explicitly available to help writers Now a third generation of work in reflection is emerging As mapped by the contributors to A Rhetoric of Reflection this iteration of research and practice is taking up new questions in new sites of activity and with new theories It comprises attention to transfer of writing knowledge and practice teaching and assessment portfolios linguistic and cultural difference and various media including print and digital It conceptualizes conversation as a primary reflective medium both inside and outside the classroom and for individuals and collectives and articulates the role that different genres play in hosting reflection Perhaps most important in the work of this third generation is the identification and increasing appreciation of the epistemic value of reflection of its ability to help make new meanings and of its rhetorical power for both scholars and students Contributors Anne Beaufort Kara Taczak Liane Robertson Michael Neal Heather Ostman Cathy Leaker Bruce Horner Asao B Inoue Tyler Richmond J Elizabeth Clark Naomi Silver Christina Russell McDonald Pamela Flash Kevin Roozen Jeff Sommers Doug Hesse Sub-method

Schelling's Theory of Symbolic Language Daniel Whistler,2013-03-28 This study reconstructs F W J Schelling s philosophy of language based on a detailed reading of 73 of Schelling s lectures on the Philosophy of Art Daniel Whistler argues that the concept of the symbol present in this lecture course and elsewhere in Schelling s writings of the period provides the key for a non referential conception of language where what matters is the intensity at which identity is produced Such a reconstruction leads Whistler to a detailed analysis of Schelling s system of identity his grand project of the years 1801 to 1805 which has been continually neglected by contemporary scholarship In particular Whistler recovers the concepts of quantitative differentiation and construction as central to Schelling s project of the period This reconstruction also leads to an original reading of the origins of the concept of the symbol in German thought there is not one romantic symbol but a whole plethora of experiments in theorising symbolism taking place at the turn of the nineteenth century At stake then is Schelling as a philosopher of language Schelling as a systematiser of identity and Schelling as a theorist of the symbol Reflective Practice in Social Work Christine Knott,Terry Scragg,2016-03-26 Reflective practice is at the heart of becoming a competent and confident social worker It s both a key element of learning and development on social work courses and an important aspect of social work practice This accessible and introductory text explores a range of approaches to reflective practice that aims to help students become more confident in answering key questions including what is reflective practice how do I develop as a reflective practitioner how do I maintain reflective practice in key contexts There are sections on writing reflective journals communicating well with service users and carers and reflective practice while on placements Learning Through Serving Christine M.
