

CREATIVITY

Creativity refers to the capacity to come up with something new and innovative that has value to yourself or others.

OVERVIEW

Creativity contains two core elements:

- Generativity: Creativity must lead to something that is "different, new, and innovative" Kaufman (2016).
- Value: Creativity must be "useful and relevant". This could be the creation of something of practical usability, or something of personal or social value.

EXAMPLES

- Constant monitoring: This refers to the act of continuously observing and scrutinizing every aspect of an employee's work.
- Excessive interference: This is the excessive and unnecessary involvement or meddling in an employee's tasks and decision-making processes.
