Scripture, Creed, Theology Robert L. Calhoun, 2011-01-01 In this long awaited edition of the late Robert Lowry Calhoun's lectures on the history of Christian doctrine a powerful case is made for the scriptural basis of the ancient ecumenical creeds The way Calhoun reads the patristic authors helps us see that the Trinitarian three yet one and Christological two yet one creedal formulations provide patterns for sorting out the highly diverse biblical ways of speaking of God and of the Messiah Jesus so that they are not contradictory The implied lesson all the more effective for many of Calhoun's students just because he let them draw this conclusion by themselves is that the creeds are not to be understood as deductions from scripture which they are not in any straightforward way but as templates for interpreting scripture It is Trinitarian and Christological patterns of reading which are implicitly operative for vast multitudes even in churches that profess to be creedless that make it possible to treat the entire bible Old and New Testaments together as a unified and coherently authoritative whole all over the world have been misunderstood maligned rejected Outcasts of the countries in which they live they have wandered for centuries over the face of the earth They have no homeland no political unity no recognition among nations They have been alone sundered shunned persecuted and banished Until about a century ago their original home had been a matter of dispute Their language had been a source of puzzlement Yet their conduct and their traditions their feeling for music dance and song have all been acclaimed Still they were not accepted and were forced to remain apart from conventional society Here is their epic history with its folktales and beliefs its rites and customs Here is the vast treasury of the Gypsies The Dramatic Works of G. Lessing, 2016-09-07 A Translation of some of Lessing's works has long been contemplated for Bonn's Standard Library and the publishers are glad to be able to bring it out at a time when an increased appreciation of this writer has become manifest in this country The publication of Mr Sime's work on Lessing and the almost simultaneous appearance of Miss Helen Zimmern's shorter but probably more popular biographical study will without doubt tend to spread amongst English speaking people a knowledge of a writer who is held in peculiar reverence by his own countrymen and there is little if anything of what he wrote that does not appeal in some way or other to the sympathies of Englishmen In this translation it is purposed to include the most popular of his works the first two volumes comprising all the finished dramatic pieces whilst the third will contain the famous Laokoon and a large portion of the Hamburg Dramaturgy here called Dramatic Notes and some other smaller pieces The arrangement of the plays is as follows The first volume contains the three tragedies and the dramatic poem Nathan the Wise This last piece and Emilia Galotti are translated by Mr R Dillon Boylan whose English versions of Schiller's Don Carlos Goethe's Wilhelm Meister and as it happens that all these comedies with the exception of the last and best Minna von Barnhelm were written before he published any more serious dramatic composition we have by reversing the order of the first two volumes an almost exactly chronological view of Lessing's dramatic work The later section of it has been placed at the commencement of the series simply because it was more convenient to include in it the introductory notice which Miss Zimmern kindly consented to write Chambers's Journal of Popular Literature, Science and Arts, 1878
