Reading in Secondary Content Areas Zhihui Fang, Mary Schleppegrell, 2008 What does it mean to teach reading in the context of the middle and high school classroom Don t students already know how to read by the time they get to secondary school And how can a busy teacher take time away from the packed curriculum of science history mathematics or language arts to teach reading This book presents a linguistic approach to teaching reading in different subjects an approach that focuses on language itself Central to this approach is a view that knowledge is constructed in and through language and that language changes with changes in knowledge As students move from elementary to secondary schools they encounter specialized knowledge and engage in new contexts of learning in all subjects This means that the language of secondary school learning is quite different from the language of the elementary years While in the elementary years the subject matter of reading materials is often close to students everyday life experiences the curriculum of secondary school deals with knowledge that is removed from students personal lives and everyday contexts The language that constructs this more specialized knowledge thus tends to be more abstract technical information laden and hierarchically organized than the more familiar and friendly language that students typically encounter during the elementary years Students need to develop specialized literacies literacy relevant to each content area as well as a critical literacy they can use across subject areas to engage with reflect on and assess specialized and advanced knowledge This functional language analysis approach is shown using actual secondary social studies science and math textbooks and using a literary text

Teaching Reading in the Content Areas Vicki Urquhart, Dana Frazee, 2012-07-03 History teachers aren't expected to teach science math teachers aren't expected to teach social studies so why are all teachers responsible for teaching reading The answer is simple An emphasis on reading and literacy skills in the content areas has an exponential effect on learning in every discipline This completely revised third edition of the best selling Teaching Reading in the Content Areas seeks to help educators understand how to teach reading in their respective disciplines choose the best reading strategies from the vast array available and positively impact student learning Throughout it draws from new research on the impact of new technologies the population boom of English language learners and the influence of the Common Core State Standards Given the complexities of the reading process teachers deserve and this book provides clear research based answers to overarching questions about teaching reading in the content areas What specific skills do students need to read effectively in each content area Which reading strategies are most appropriate to help students become more effective readers and independent learners What type of learning environment promotes effective reading and learning By focusing on the differences in how content area experts read and reason teachers can be better prepared to help their students understand that the ways they read in biology are different from the ways they read in English history or mathematics To read successfully in different content areas students must develop discipline specific skills and strategies along with knowledge of that discipline With that in mind this book also includes 40 strategies designed to help students in every grade level and across the content areas develop their vocabularies comprehend informational and narrative texts and engage in meaningful discussions of what they read
