Reading Capitalist Realism Alison Shonkwiler, Leigh Claire La Berge, 2014-04 Presents approaches to the question of the relation between capitalism and narrative form partly by questioning how the realism of austerity privatization and wealth protection relate to the realism of narrative and cultural production

The Science of Reading Adrian Johns, 2023-04-05 For the first time the story of how and why we have plumbed the mysteries of reading and why it matters today Reading is perhaps the essential practice of modern civilization For centuries it has been seen as key to both personal fulfillment and social progress and millions today depend on it to participate fully in our society Yet at its heart reading is a surprisingly elusive practice This book tells for the first time the story of how American scientists and others have sought to understand reading and by understanding it to improve how people do it Starting around 1900 researchers convinced of the urgent need to comprehend a practice central to industrial democracy began to devise instruments and experiments to investigate what happened to people when they read. They traced how a good reader's eyes moved across a page of printed characters and they asked how their mind apprehended meanings as they did so. In schools across the country millions of Americans learned to read through the application of this science of reading. At the same time workers fanned out across the land to extend the science of reading into the social realm, mapping the very geography of information for the first time. Their pioneering efforts revealed that the nation's most pressing problems were rooted in drastic informational inequities between North and South, city and country, and white and Black, and they suggested ways to tackle those problems. Today much of how we experience our information society reflects the influence of these enterprises. This book explains both how the science of reading shaped our age and why, with so-called reading wars still plaguing schools across the nation, it remains bitterly contested.

Scent and Sensibilities Kelvin E. Y. Low, 2008-12-18 Smells are distinct and ubiquitous. They envelope us, enter our bodies, and emanate from us. Yet they remain relegated to the background of everyday life experiences. This book attempts to highlight the social salience of smell in social actors' day-to-day encounters where issues involving morality and social othering, presentation of self and personhood, intertwine with analyses of smell as a social conduit. These encounters include the experiences of anosmic individuals which capture non-olfactive social worlds that are rarely addressed hitherto. Further deliberations on olfaction in relation to social memberships of race, class, and gender elucidate upon social boundaries of inclusion and exclusion constructed vis-à-vis smell as a social marker. Olfactive adjudications of race and class are then expanded upon through the author's discussion of various smellscape in the context of Singapore. Olfaction, sanitary discipline, and olfactive simulacra are also expounded upon, thereby underscoring the control and manipulation of scents in the contexts of modernity and postmodernity. Smells therefore offer insights into the workings of social relations and power structures in society. By predicating analyses on empirical data procured from Singapore along with case studies from the region and beyond, this study draws much-needed attention on smell, which has been a neglected sense in the wider literature. In addition, the concurrent employment of the other senses will also be explicated, which therefore demonstrates the social character of smell and other sensory modalities through historical and contemporary milieus. This book is a pioneering effort in offering sociocultural interpretations of scents based on primary and secondary data analysed using the trajectory of sociology of everyday life.

Advertising Myths Anne Cronin, 2012-11-12 Advertising is often portrayed negatively as corrupting a mythically pure relationship between people and things. In Advertising Myths, Anne Cronin argues that it is better understood as a matrix of transformation that performs divisions in the social order and arranges classificatory regimes. Focusing on consumption controversies, Cronin contends that advertising is constituted of circuits of belief that flow between practitioners, clients, regulators, consumers, and academics. Controversies such as those over tobacco and alcohol advertising, she argues, distil these beliefs and articulate with programmes of social engineering aimed at altering consumption patterns. This book will be essential reading for students and academics of advertising and consumption      Queer Democracy Daniel D. Miller, 2021-08-25 Queer Democracy undertakes an interdisciplinary critical investigation of the centuries old metaphor of society as a body drawing on queer and transgender accounts of embodiment as a constructive resource for reimagining politics and society Daniel Miller argues that this metaphor has consistently expressed a desire for social and political order grounded in the social body's imagined normative shape or morphology The consistent result from the concord discourses of the pre Christian Stoics all the way through to contemporary nationalism and populism has been the suppression of any dissent that would unmake the social body's presumed normativity Miller argues that the conception of embodiment at the heart of the metaphor is a fantasy and that negative social and political reactions to dissent represent visceral dysphoric responses to its reshaping of the social body He argues that social body's essential queerness defined by fluidity and lack of a fixed morphology spawns queer democracy expressed through ongoing social and political practices that aim to extend liberty and equality to new social domains Queer Democracy articulates a new departure for the ongoing development of theoretical articulations linking queer and trans theory with political theory It will appeal to both academic and non academic readers engaged in research on political theory populism US religion gender studies and queer studies      Fabricating Pleasure Karin A. Wurst, 2005 Traces how the German middle class created a unique form of domestic culture that fused consumption with high culture in fashionable forms of entertainment Entertainment defined as occasions for creating pleasure added an important dimension to the lifestyle and self definition of the German middle class around the turn of the nineteenth century Modern forms of culture and consumption appearing around this time not only enhanced pleasure in physical sensations but also enabled imaginary sensations in the absence of actual stimuli Desiring rather than having became an important mode of cultural consumption linking products and practices with self image serving to express social identity in an increasingly more anonymous society a society where the modern freedom of choice brought with it a loss of tradition and the stability attached to it Fabricating Pleasure traces the creation of this unique form of domestic culture showing how the bourgeoisie of late eighteenth and early nineteenth century Germany fused consumption with high culture Author Karin Wurst illuminates the sociohistorical context and the emergence of the modern middle class its differentiation and its conception of culture In her thoughtful analysis Wurst reconstructs the roles of Empfindsamkeit sensibility and the new love paradigm examining the change in mentality they fostered through the reconceptualization of pleasure and entertainment The book also discusses the relationship between print culture using Bertuch's Journal des Luxus und der Moden as its prime example and an increase in social mobility From art and music to fashion and travel Wurst places these popular forms of entertainment and pleasurable diversion in their social and historical contexts and also shows how they have remarkable bearing on present day debates on cultural literacy      Ethics and Politics in Modern American Poetry John Wrighton, 2012-06-25 From the Objectivists to e poetry this thoughtful and innovative book explores the dynamic relationship between the ethical imperative and poetic practice revitalizing the study of the most prominent post war American poets in a fresh provocative way Contributing to the turn to ethics in literary studies the book begins with Emmanuel Levinas philosophy proposing that his reorientation of ontology and ethics demands a social responsibility In poetic practice this responsibility for the other it is argued is both responsive to the traumatized semiotics of our shared language and directed towards an emancipatory social activism Individual chapters deal with Charles Olson s The Maximus Poems including reproductions of previously unpublished archive material Gary Snyder s environmental poetry Allen Ginsberg s Beat poetics Jerome Rothenberg s ethno poetics and Bruce Andrew s Language poetry Following the book s chronological and contextual approach their work is situated within a constellation of poetic schools and movements and in relation to the shifting socio political conditions of post war America In its redefinition and extension of the key notion of poethics and as guide to the development of experimental work in modern American poetry this book will interest and appeal to a wide audience      Dazzling Bodies Richard Valantasis,2014-10-23
