Fostering Children's Mathematical Power Arthur Baroody, Arthur J. Baroody, Jesse L.M. Wilkins, Ronald T. Coslick, 1998-09-01 Teachers have the responsibility of helping all of their students construct the disposition and knowledge needed to live successfully in a complex and rapidly changing world To meet the challenges of the 21st century students will especially need mathematical power a positive disposition toward mathematics curiosity and self confidence facility with the processes of mathematical inquiry problem solving reasoning and communicating and well connected mathematical knowledge an understanding of mathematical concepts procedures and formulas This guide seeks to help teachers achieve the capability to foster children s mathematical power the ability to excite them about mathematics help them see that it makes sense and enable them to harness its might for solving everyday and extraordinary problems The investigative approach attempts to foster mathematical power by making mathematics instruction process based understandable or relevant to the everyday life of students Past efforts to reform mathematics instruction have focused on only one or two of these aims whereas the investigative approach accomplishes all three By teaching content in a purposeful context an inquiry based fashion and a meaningful manner this approach promotes children's mathematical learning in an interesting thought provoking and comprehensible way This teaching guide is designed to help teachers appreciate the need for the investigative approach and to provide practical advice on how to make this approach happen in the classroom It not only dispenses information but also serves as a catalyst for exploring conjecturing about discussing and contemplating the teaching and learning of mathematics

Roads to Health G. Geltner, 2019-08-02 In Roads to Health G. Geltner demonstrates that urban dwellers in medieval Italy had a keen sense of the dangers to their health posed by conditions of overcrowding shortages of food and clean water air pollution and the improper disposal of human and animal waste He consults scientific narrative and normative sources that detailed and consistently denounced the physical and environmental hazards urban communities faced latrines improperly installed and sewers blocked animals left to roam free and carcasses left rotting on public byways and thoroughfares congested by artisanal and commercial activities that impeded circulation polluted waterways and raised miasmas However as Geltner shows numerous administrative records also offer ample evidence of the concrete measures cities took to ameliorate unhealthy conditions Toiling on the frontlines were public functionaries generally known as viarii or road masters appointed to maintain their community's infrastructures and police pertinent human and animal behavior Operating on a parallel track were the camparii or field masters charged with protecting the city's hinterlands and thereby the quality of what would reach urban markets taverns ovens and mills Roads to Health provides a critical overview of the mandates and activities of the viarii and camparii as enforcers of preventive health and safety policies between roughly 1250 and 1500 and offers three extended case studies for Lucca Bologna and the smaller Piedmont town of Pinerolo In telling their stories Geltner contends that preventive health practices while scientifically informed emerged neither solely from a centralized regime nor as a reaction to the onset of the Black Death Instead they were typically negotiated by diverse stakeholders including neighborhood residents officials artisans and clergymen and fostered throughout the centuries by a steady concern for people's greater health
