The Animal and the Daemon in Early China Roel Sterckx, 2012-02-01 Exploring the cultural perception of animals in early Chinese thought this careful reading of Warring States and Han dynasty writings analyzes how views of animals were linked to human self perception and investigates the role of the animal world in the conception of ideals of sagehood and socio political authority Roel Sterckx shows how perceptions of the animal world influenced early Chinese views of man s place among the living species and in the world at large He argues that the classic Chinese perception of the world did not insist on clear categorical or ontological boundaries between animals humans and other creatures such as ghosts and spirits Instead the animal realm was positioned as part of an organic whole and the mutual relationships among the living species both as natural and cultural creatures were characterized as contingent continuous and interdependent

Philosophy and the 'Dazzling Ideal' of Science Graham McFee, 2019-08-27 Recent decades have seen attacks on philosophy as an irrelevant field of inquiry when compared with science In this book Graham McFee defends the claims of philosophy against attempts to minimize either philosophy s possibility or its importance by deploying a contrast with what Wittgenstein characterized as the dazzling ideal of science This dazzling ideal incorporates both the imagined completeness of scientific explanation whereby completing its project would leave nothing unexplained and the exceptionless character of the associated conception of causality On such a scientific world view what need is there for philosophy In his defense of philosophy and its truth claims McFee shows that rejecting such scientism is not automatically anti scientific and that it permits granting to natural science properly understood its own truth generating power Further McFee argues for contextualism in the project of philosophy and sets aside the pervasive and pernicious requirement for exceptionless generalizations while relating his account to interconnections between the concepts of person
