Increasing the Effectiveness of Sexual Harassment Prevention Through Learner Engagement Anya M. Garman, 2013 Abstract Previous research on the effectiveness of sexual harassment prevention training has shown mixed results While gender differences can account for some of these positive and negative results very little has been done to look at the instructional design of the training programs specifically the approach and language of course materials Sexual assault prevention training has yielded success using a non accusatory or bystander approach increasing both engagement and positive attitudes towards the training The current study measured the effectiveness by applying the bystander approach to sexual harassment training using bystander language in an interactive tabletop exercise Pre and post tests results found that participants in the engagement condition had higher satisfaction scores and a greater magnitude of change between and post test scores than in the non engagement condition However the results could only support a general trend when looking at the use of bystander versus accusatory language The Effects of Training Regarding Sexual Harassment Prevention in the Workplace on the Knowledge, Skills and Motivation of Supervisory Level Staff in a Human Services Organization Janet G. Kelly, 1997 Training in the Prevention of Sexual Harassment, 1987 The Sexual Harassment Training Program in the National Guard Theodore Paige (Jr), AIR COMMAND AND STAFF COLL MAXWELL AFB AL., 1986 Based upon the information analyzed during this research certain shortcomings and weaknesses are evident in the National Guard's Training in the Prevention of Sexual Harassment program The following recommendations are offered 1 Appropriate National Guard regulations should be revised to include specific requirements for sexual harassment prevention training to include training requirements and specific completion date 2 Integrate sexual harassment prevention into Equal Opportunity Human Relations training and all professional military education 3 Establish formal requirements for sexual harassment prevention training 4 Establish separate training for technicians 5 Adopt or allow states to adopt a correspondence course so that states may have options for training in sexual harassment 6 Certify all Social Actions Human Relations officers as trainees 7 Certify all Equal Opportunity managers and specialists plus one additional person to train technicians 8 Add sexual harassment certification to the curriculum at Defense Equal Opportunity Military Institute 9 Add sexual harassment prevention to the training provided to new general officers and
