A Cultural History of Aramaic Holger Gzella, 2015-01-08 Aramaic is a constant thread running through the various civilizations of the Near East ancient and modern from 1000 BCE to the present and has been the language of small principalities world empires and a fair share of the Jewish Christian tradition Holger Gzella describes its cultural and linguistic history as a continuous evolution from its beginnings to the advent of Islam For the first time the individual phases of the language their socio historical underpinnings and the textual sources are discussed comprehensively in light of the latest linguistic and historical research and with ample attention to scribal traditions multilingualism and language as a marker of cultural self awareness Many new observations on Aramaic are thereby integrated into a coherent historical framework

The Oxford Handbook of

the Hellenistic and Roman Near East Rubina Raja, 2025 The Near East during the Hellenistic and Roman periods has been studied for centuries This Handbook includes fifty chapters written by experts from a variety of disciplines archaeology including classical near eastern and Islamic ancient history anthropology art history data and network science epigraphy and historiography Together these chapters shed a fresh light on the vast regions that made up Hellenistic and later Roman Syria and the Near East The material and written evidence from the region is considered side by side with historical sources as well as scientific data coming out of archaeological science and network science and shows how new knowledge about the region can be brought to the forefront of current literature on the subject The dynamic volatile diverse and culturally rich regions that this volume focuses on have left an abundant cultural heritage and in many places these regions are under constant threat In this Handbook knowledge about the newest research on a myriad of these regions sites and locations is highlighted together with overviews of the centuries long history of research The Handbook is essential for students scholars and the archaeologically inclined reader and constitutes the definitive collection of current research in the field

Visions of Community in the Post-Roman World Clemens Gantner, 2016-03-03 This volume looks at visions of community in a comparative perspective from Late Antiquity to the dawning of the age of crusades It addresses the question of why and how distinctive new political cultures developed after the disintegration of the Roman World and to what degree their differences had already emerged in the first post Roman centuries The Latin West Orthodox Byzantium and its Slavic periphery and the Islamic world each retained different parts of the Graeco Roman heritage while introducing new elements For instance ethnicity became a legitimizing element of rulership in the West remained a structural element of the imperial periphery in Byzantium and contributed to the inner dynamic of Islamic states without becoming a resource of political integration Similarly the political role of religion also differed between the emerging post Roman worlds It is surprising that little systematic research has been done in these fields so far The 32 contributions to the volume explore this new line of research and look at different aspects of the process with leading western Medievalists Byzantinists and Islamicists covering a wide range of pertinent topics At a closer look some of the apparent differences between the West and the Islamic world seem less distinctive and the inner variety of all post Roman societies becomes more marked At the same time new variations in the discourse of community and the practice of power emerge Anybody interested in the development of the post Roman Mediterranean but also in the relationship between the Islamic World and the West will gain new insights from these studies on the political role of ethnicity and religion in the post Roman Mediterranean

Israel Numismatic Research Volume 19 (2024) Israel Numismatic Society, 2024-12-31 Aksum and Nubia George Hatke, 2013-01-07 Aksum and Nubia assembles and analyzes the textual and archaeological evidence of interaction between Nubia and the Ethiopian kingdom of Aksum focusing primarily on the fourth century CE Although ancient Nubia and Ethiopia have been the subject of a growing number of studies in recent years little attention has been given to contact between these two regions Hatke argues that ancient Northeast Africa cannot be treated as a unified area politically economically or culturally Rather Nubia and Ethiopia developed within very different regional spheres of interaction as a result of which the Nubian kingdom of Kush came to focus its energies on the Nile Valley relying on this as its main route of contact with the outside world while Aksum was oriented towards the Red Sea and Arabia In this way Aksum and Kush coexisted in peace for most of their history and such contact as they maintained with each other was limited to small scale commerce Only in the fourth century CE did Aksum take up arms against Kush and even then the conflict seems to have been related mainly to security issues on Aksum's western frontier Although Aksum never managed to hold onto Kush for long much less dealt the final death blow to the Nubian kingdom as is often believed claims to Kush continued to play a role in Aksumite royal ideology as late as the sixth century Aksum and Nubia critically examines the extent to which relations between two ancient African states were influenced by warfare commerce and political fictions

The History of the Diadochoi in Book XIX of Diodoros' »Bibliothèque« Alexander Meeus, 2022-02-21 Diodoros of Sicily's book XIX is the main source for the history of the Diadochoi Alexander the Great's Successors from 317 to 311 BCE With the first full scale commentary on this text in any language Alexander Meeus offers a detailed and reliable guide to the complicated historical narrative and the fascinating ethnographic information transmitted by Diodoros which includes the earliest accounts of Indian widow burning and Nabataean culture Studying both history and historiography this volume elucidates a crucial stage in the creation of the Hellenistic world in Greece and the Near East as well as the confusing source tradition Diodoros a long neglected author indispensable for much of our knowledge of Antiquity is currently enjoying growing scholarly interest An ample introduction discusses his historical methods and sheds light on his language and style and on the manuscript transmission of books XVII XX By negotiating between diametrically opposed scholarly opinions a new understanding of Diodoros place in the ancient historiographical tradition is offered The volume is of interest to scholars of ancient historiography Hellenistic history Hellenistic prose and the textual transmission of the Bibliotheca

Aramaic Inscriptions and Documents of the Roman Period John F. Healey, 2009-10-29 In the first centuries AD although much of the Near East was ruled by Rome the main local language was Aramaic and the people who lived inside or on the fringes of the area controlled by the Romans frequently wrote their inscriptions and legal documents in their own local dialects of this language This book introduces these fascinating early texts to a wider audience by presenting a representative sample comprising eighty inscriptions and documents in the following dialects Nabataean Jewish Palmyrene Syriac and Hatran Detailed commentaries on the texts are preceded by chapters on history and culture and on epigraphy and language The linguistic commentaries will help readers who have a knowledge of Hebrew or Arabic or one of the Aramaic dialects to understand the difficulties involved in interpreting such materials The translations and more general comments will be of great interest to classicists and ancient historians Registers and Modes of Communication in the Ancient Near East Kyle H. Keimer, Gillan Davis, 2017-09-07 It is the quintessential nature of humans to communicate with each other Good communications bad communications miscommunications or no communications at all have driven everything from world events to the most mundane of interactions At the broadest level communication entails many registers and modes verbal iconographic symbolic oral written and performed Relationships and identities real and fictive arise from communication but how and why were they effected and how should they be understood The chapters in this volume address some of the registers and modes of communication in the ancient Near East Particular focuses are imperial and court communications between rulers and ruled communications intended for a given community and those between families and individuals Topics cover a broad chronological period 3rd millennium BC to 1st millennium AD and geographic range Egypt to Israel and Mesopotamia encapsulating the extraordinarily diverse plurality of human experience This volume is deliberately interdisciplinary and cross cultural and its broad scope provides wide insights and a holistic understanding of communication applicable today It is intended for both the scholar and readers with interests in ancient Near Eastern history and Biblical studies communications especially communications theory and sociolinguistics
