Politics and the Slavic Languages Tomasz Kamusella, 2021-06-17 During the last two centuries ethnolinguistic nationalism has been the norm of nation building and state building in Central Europe The number of recognized Slavic languages in line with the normative political formula of language nation state gradually tallied with the number of the Slavic nation states especially after the breakups of Czechoslovakia the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia But in the current age of borderless cyberspace regional and minority Slavic languages are freely standardized and used even when state authorities disapprove As a result since the turn of the 19th century the number of Slavic languages has varied widely from a single Slavic language to as many as 40 Through the story of Slavic languages this timely book illustrates that decisions on what counts as a language are neither permanent nor stable arguing that the politics of language is the politics in Central Europe The monograph will prove to be an essential resource for scholars of linguistics and politics in Central Europe

The Languages of the Soviet Union Bernard Comrie, 1981-06-04 A general account of the languages of the Soviet Union one of the most diverse multinational and multilingual states in the world as well as one of the most important. There are some 130 languages spoken in the USSR belonging to five main families and ranging from Russian which is the first language of about 130 000 000 people to Alut spoken only by 96 in the 1970 census. Dr Comrie has two general aims. First he presents the most important structural features of these languages: their genetic relationships and classification and their distinctive typological features. Secondly he examines the social and political background to the use of functioning of the various languages in a multilingual state.
