Graham, 2007-09-30 Faith and Power in Japanese Buddhist Art explores the transformation of Buddhism from the premodern to the contemporary era in Japan and the central role its visual culture has played in this transformation Although Buddhism is generally regarded as peripheral to modern Japanese society this book demonstrates otherwise Its chapters elucidate the thread of change over time in the practice of Buddhism as revealed in temple worship halls and other sites of devotion and in imagery representing the religion's most popular deities and religious practices It also introduces the work of modern and contemporary artists who are not generally associated with institutional Buddhism and its canonical visual requirements but whose faith inspires their art The author makes a persuasive argument that the neglect of these materials by scholars results from erroneous presumptions about the aesthetic superiority of early Japanese Buddhist artifacts and an asserted decline in the institutional power of the religion after the sixteenth century She demonstrates that recent works constitute a significant contribution to the history of Japanese art and architecture providing evidence of Buddhism's compelling presence at all levels of Japanese society and its evolution in response to the needs of new generations of supporters Tibetan Paintings Pratapaditya Pal,1988

Early Buddhist Art of China and Central Asia Marilyn M. Rhie, 1999 Volume two of Marilyn Rhie's widely acclaimed and formative multi-volume work presents a comprehensive scholarly and detailed study of the Buddhist art of China and Central Asia from 316-439 A.D. during the formative early periods of Buddhism in the Eastern Han and Sixteen Kingdoms Period. Using texts translated from the Chinese together with stylistic and technical analyses, the chronology and sources of the art are more clearly defined than in previous studies for the regions of South and North China other than Kansu, and the important sites of Tumshuk Kucha and Karashahr on the Northern Silk Route in eastern Central Asia. Furthermore, by incorporating extensive religious and historical materials, this work not only contributes to clarifying the regional characteristics of the art but also offers new insights into the broader interregional relationships of this politically fragmented period.

Early Buddhist Art of China and Central Asia, Volume 3 Marilyn Martin Rhie, 2010-06-14 This book, third in a series on the early Buddhist art of China and Central Asia, centers on Buddhist art from the Western Han in 385-431 A.D. in eastern Kansu, northwest China, primarily from the cave temples of Pinglingssu and Maichishan. A detailed chronological and iconographic study of sculptures and wall paintings in Cave 169 at Pinglingssu particularly yields a chronological framework for unlocking the difficult issues of dating early fifth-century Chinese Buddhist art and offers some new insights into textual sources in the Lotus Sutra and Amitayus sutras. Further, this study introduces the iconography of the five Buddhas and its relation to the art of Gandhara and the famous five colossal Tanyao caves at Yunkang.
