The Snyders Mounds and Five Other Mound Groups in Calhoun County, Illinois David P. Braun, James B. Griffin, Paul F.
Titterington, 1982-01-01 In the 1940s Paul F. Titterington, a doctor and avocational archaeologist, excavated several prehistoric burial mounds in Calhoun County, Illinois. He did not publish the results of his research but he did donate his notebooks, photographs, and artifact collection to the University of Michigan in 1955. In this report, David Braun and James Griffin present Titterington's research.      The Burial Complexes of the Knight and Norton Mounds in Illinois and Michigan James B.
Griffin, Richard E. Flanders, Paul F. Titterington, 1970-01-01 In this volume, the authors collect data from various sources on the excavations of two groups of prehistoric burial mounds: the Knight Mound Group in Calhoun County, Illinois, and the Norton Mound Group in Kent County, Michigan. Includes more than 200 b/w maps, illustrations, and photographs.      The Lithic Industries of the Illinois Valley in the Early and Middle Woodland Period Anta Montet-White, 1968 Anta Montet-White analyzes chipped stone tools from more than 30 Woodland and Hopewell sites in the Illinois Valley, including Steuben, Weaver, Havana, Klunk, and Snyders. Contains more than 65 drawings and photographs of various tools, including preforms, projectile points, celts, and hoes.      The Archaeology of Carrier Mills Richard W. Jefferies, 2013-10-14 Archaeological sites throughout southern Illinois provide a chronicle of the varying ways people have lived in that area during the past 10,000 years. This book focuses on the results of a five-year archaeological investigation in a 143-acre area known as the Carrier Mills Archaeological District. This area, rich in archaeological treasures, offers many keys to the prehistoric people of southern Illinois. Archaeologists in this study have sought to learn the ages of the various prehistoric occupations represented at the sites to better understand the technology and social organization of these prehistoric people, to collect information about diet, health, and physical characteristics of the prehistoric inhabitants, and to investigate the remains of the 19th-century Lakeview settlement.      ARCHAEOLOGY OF THE LOWER OHIO RIVER VALLEY Jon Muller, 2009 This volume describes the archaeology of the Lower Ohio River Valley region.      Woodland Period Systematics in the Middle Ohio Valley Darlene Applegate, Robert C. Mainfort, 2005-10-09 This collection provides a comprehensive vocabulary for defining the cultural manifestation of the term Woodland. The Middle Ohio Valley is an archaeologically rich region that stretches from southeastern Indiana across southern Ohio and northeastern Kentucky and into northwestern West Virginia. In this area are some of the most spectacular and diverse Woodland Period archaeological sites in North America, but these sites and their rich cultural remains do not fit easily into the traditional Southeastern classification system. This volume, with contributions by most of the senior researchers in the field represents an important step toward establishing terminology and taxa that are more appropriate to interpreting cultural diversity in the region. The important questions are diverse. What criteria are useful in defining periods and cultural types and over what spatial and temporal boundaries do those criteria hold? How can we accommodate regional variation in the development and expression of traits used to delineate periods and cultural types? How does the concept of tradition relate to periods and cultural types? Is it prudent to equate culture types with periods? Is it prudent to equate archaeological cultures with ethnographic cultures? How does the available taxonomy hinder research? Contributing authors address these issues and others in the context of their Middle Ohio Valley Woodland Period research.

Illinois Hopewell and Late Woodland Mounds Gregory Perino, 2006. For the first time the editors of this volume bring together 18 of Perino's Middle and Late Woodland excavation manuscripts for publication. The volume begins with an introductory historical and bibliographical essay by Kenneth Farnsworth summarizing the history and focus of Perino's work in the context of developments in Illinois archaeology during the 1950s-1970s. The 100-page Farnsworth introduction and the 18 Perino site excavation chapters of this ambitious volume report on excavations at three Middle Woodland habitation sites: Snyder's Apple Creek and North 12 Hopewellian mound groups; Meppen, Bedford, Montezuma, Pilot Peak, Helm, Swartz, Kraske, North Peisker, Schafner, Gibson, and Joe Gay, two Middle Late Woodland mound groups; Carter and L. Orient, four Late Woodland mound groups; Yokem, Homer, Adams, Lawrence, Gay, and Hacker, a buried Early Archaic habitation midden; Stilwell II, and a Terminal Archaic Red Ochre mortuary site, Collinsville. From the publisher: Gathering Hopewell Christopher Carr, D. Troy Case, 2005-07-25. Among the most socially and personally vocal archaeological remains on the North American continent are the massive and often complexly designed earthen architecture of Hopewellian peoples of two thousand years ago, their elaborately embellished works of art made of glistening metals and stones from faraway places, and their highly formalized mortuaries. In this book, twenty-one researchers, in interwoven efforts, immerse themselves and the reader in this vibrant archaeological record in order to richly reconstruct the societies, rituals, and ritual interactions of Hopewellian peoples. By finding the faces, actions, and motivations of Hopewellian peoples as individuals who constructed knowable social roles, the authors explore, in a personalized and locally contextualized manner, the details of Hopewellian life: leadership, its sacred and secular power bases, recruitment and formalization over time, systems of social ranking and prestige, animal totemic clan organization, kinship structures and sodalities, gender roles, prestige work load, and health, community organization in its tri-scalar residential, symbolic, and demographic forms, intercommunity alliances, and changes in their strategies and expanses over time, and interregional travels for power, questing, pilgrimage, healing, tutelage, and acquiring ritual knowledge. This book is useful to scholars, graduate students, and advanced undergraduates interested in the workings and development of social complexity at local and interregional scales, recent theoretical developments in the anthropology of the topics listed above, the prehistory of eastern North America, its history of intellectual development, and Native American ritual symbolism and belief      Hero, Hawk, and Open Hand Richard F. Townsend, 2004-01-01 Along the Ohio Tennessee and Mississippi Rivers the archaeological remains of earthen pyramids plazas large communities and works of art and artifacts testify to Native American civilizations that thrived there between 3000 B C and A D 1500 This fascinating book presents exciting new information on the art and cultures of these ancient peoples and features hundreds of gorgeous photographs of important artworks artifacts and ritual objects excavated from Amerindian archaeological sites Drawing on excavation findings and extensive research the contributors to the book document a succession of distinct ancient populations in the pre Columbian world of the American Midwest and Southeast A team of interdisciplinary scholars examines the connections between archaeological remains of different regions and the themes forms and rituals that continue in specific tribes of today The book also includes the personal reflections of contemporary Native Americans who discuss their perspectives on the significance of the fascinating and beautiful prehistoric artifacts as well as their own cultural practices today      Miskwabik, Metal of Ritual Amelia M. Trevelyan, 2014-07-11 Miskwabik Metal of Ritual examines the thousands of beautiful and intricate ritual works of art from ceremonial weaponry to delicate copper pendants and ear ornaments created in eastern North America before the arrival of Europeans The first comprehensive examination of this 3 000 year old metallurgical tradition the book provides unique insight into the motivation of the artisans and the significance of these objects and highlights the brilliance and sophistication of the early civilizations of the Americas Comparing the ritual architecture and metallurgy of the original Americans with the ethnological record Amelia M Trevelyan begins to unravel the mystery of the significance of the objects as well as their special functions within the societies that created them The book includes dozens of striking color and black and white photographs      Indian Mounds and Villages in Illinois Illinois Archaeological Survey, 1960      The Mann Phase Michael Strezewski, 2025-05-20 This book provides a comprehensive overview of the Mann site in southwestern Indiana which dates to 200 600 CE and is one of the most consequential but enigmatic archaeological sites of the Middle Woodland period      Ceramic Petrography and Hopewell Interaction James B. Stoltman, 2015-04-15 A highly innovative study in which James B Stoltman uses petrography to reveal previously undetectable evidence of cultural interaction among Hopewell societies of the Ohio Valley region and the contemporary peoples of the Southeast Petrography is the microscopic examination of thin sections of pottery to determine their precise mineralogical composition In this groundbreaking work James B Stoltman applies quantitative as well as qualitative methods to the petrography of Native American ceramics As explained in Ceramic Petrography and Hopewell Interaction by adapting refinements to the technique of petrography Stoltman offers a powerful new set of tools that enables fact based and rigorous identification of the composition and sources of pottery Stoltman s subject is the cultural interaction among the Hopewell Interaction Sphere societies of the Ohio Valley region and contemporary peoples of the Southeast Inferring social and commercial relationships between disparate communities by determining whether objects found in one settlement originated there or elsewhere is a foundational technique of archaeology. The technique however rests on the informed but necessarily imperfect visual inspection of objects by archaeologists. Petrography greatly amplifies archaeologists' ability to determine objects' provenance with greater precision and less guesswork. Using petrography to study a vast quantity of pottery samples sourced from Hopewell communities, Stoltman is able for the first time to establish which items are local, which are local but atypical, and which originated elsewhere. Another exciting possibility with petrography is to further determine the home source of objects that came from afar. Thus combining traditional qualitative techniques with a wealth of new quantitative data, Ceramic Petrography and Hopewell Interaction offers a map of social and trade relationships among communities within and beyond the Hopewell Interaction Sphere with much greater precision and confidence than in the past. Ceramic Petrography and Hopewell Interaction provides a clear and concise explanation of petrographic methods. Stoltman's findings about Hopewell and southeastern ceramics in various sites and the fascinating discovery that visits to Hopewell centers by southeastern Native Americans were not only for trade purposes but more for such purposes as pilgrimages, vision, and power, questing, healing, and the acquisition of knowledge. The Burial Complexes of the Knight and Norton Mounds in Illinois and Michigan. James Bennett Griffin, Richard E. Flanders, Paul Francis Titterton, 1969.

Kentucky Archaeology. R. Barry Lewis, 2021-10-21. Kentucky's rich archaeological heritage spans thousands of years and the Commonwealth remains fertile ground for study of the people who inhabited the midcontinent before, during, and after European settlement. This long-awaited volume brings together the most recent research on Kentucky's prehistory and early history, presenting both an accurate descriptive and an authoritative interpretation of Kentucky's past. The book is arranged chronologically from the Ice Age to modern times, when issues of preservation and conservation have overtaken questions of identification and classification. For each time slice of Kentucky's past, the contributors describe typical communities and settlement patterns, major changes from previous cultural periods, the nature of the economy and subsistence, artifacts, the general health and characteristics of the people, and regional cultural differences. Sites discussed include the Green River shell mounds, the Central Kentucky Adena mounds and enclosures, Eastern Kentucky rockshelters, the important Wickliffe site at the confluence of the Mississippi and Ohio rivers, Fort Ancient culture villages, and the fortified towns of the Mississippian period in Western Kentucky. The authors draw from a wealth of unpublished material and offer the detailed insights and perspectives of specialists who have focused much of their professional careers on the scientific investigation of Kentucky's prehistory. The book's many graphic elements—maps, artifact drawings, photographs, and village plans—combined with a straightforward and readable text, provide a format that will appeal to the general reader as well as to students and specialists in other fields who wish to learn more about Kentucky's archaeology.
