G. Aston,2017-10-14 Excerpt from Shinto the Way of the Gods Prehistoric Shinto Ethnologists are agreed that the predominant element of the Japanese race came to Japan by way of Korea from that part of Asia which lies north of China probably by a succession of immigrations which extended over many centuries It is useless to speculate as to what rudiments of religious belief the ancestors of the Japanese race may have brought with them from their continental home Sun worship has long been a central feature of Tartar religions as it is of Shinto but such a coincidence proves nothing as this cult is universal among nations in the barbaric stage of civilization It is impossible to say whether or not an acquaintance with the old State religion of China essentially a nature worship had an influence on the prehistoric development of Shinto The circumstance that the Sun was the chief deity of the latter and Heaven of the former is adverse to this supposition Nor is there anything in Japan which corresponds with the Shangti of the ancient Chinese About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Religions of Japan H.
