Gazing at Games Veronica Sundstedt, 2022-05-31 Eye tracking is a process that identifies a specific point in both space and time that is being looked at by the observer This information can also be used in real time to control applications using the eyes Recent innovations in the video game industry include alternative input modalities to provide an enhanced more immersive user experience In particular eye gaze control has recently been explored as an input modality in video games This book is an introduction for those interested in using eye tracking to control or analyze video games and virtual environments Key concepts are illustrated through three case studies in which gaze control and voice recognition have been used in combination to control virtual characters and applications The lessons learned in the case studies are presented and issues relating to incorporating eye tracking in interactive applications are discussed The reader will be given an introduction to human visual attention eye movements and eye tracking technologies Previous work in the field of studying fixation behavior in games and using eye tracking for video game interaction will also be presented The final chapter discusses ideas for how this field can be developed further to create richer interaction for characters and crowds in virtual environments Alternative means of interaction in video games are especially important for disabled users for whom traditional techniques such as mouse and keyboard may be far from ideal This book is also relevant for those wishing to use gaze control in applications other than games Table of Contents Introduction The Human Visual System Eye Tracking Eye Tracking in Video Games Gaze and Voice Controlled Video Games Case Study I and II Gaze and Voice Controlled Drawing Case Study III Conclusion

Virtualpolitik Elizabeth Mathews Losh, 2009 Government media making from official websites to whistleblowers e mail and its sometimes unintended consequences Today government agencies not only have official Web sites but also sponsor moderated chats blogs digital video clips online tutorials videogames and virtual tours of national landmarks Sophisticated online marketing campaigns target citizens with messages from the government even as officials make news with digital gaffes involving embarrassing e mails instant messages and videos In Virtualpolitik Elizabeth Losh closely examines the government's digital rhetoric in such cases and its dual role as mediamaker and regulator Looking beyond the usual focus on interfaces operations and procedures Losh analyzes the ideologies revealed in government's digital discourse its anxieties about new online practices and what happens when officially sanctioned material is parodied remixed or recontextualized by users Losh reports on a video game that panicked the House Intelligence Committee pedagogic and therapeutic digital products aimed at American soldiers government Web sites in the weeks and months following 9 11 PowerPoint presentations by government officials and gadflies e mail as a channel for whistleblowing digital satire of surveillance practices national digital libraries and computer based training for health professionals Losh concludes that the government's virtualpolitik its digital realpolitik aimed at preserving its own power is focused on regulation casting as criminal such common online activities as file sharing video game play and social networking This policy approach she warns indefinitely postpones building effective institutions for electronic governance ignores constituents need to shape electronic identities to suit their personal politics and misses an opportunity to learn how citizens can have meaningful interaction with the virtual manifestations of the state
