chronicles and analyzes several of the core characteristics of the Africana tradition of critical theory Reiland Rabaka's primary preoccupation is with Cabral's theoretical and political legacies that is to say with the ways in which he constructed deconstructed and reconstructed theory and the aims objectives and concrete outcomes of his theoretical applications and discursive practices The book begins with the Negritude Movement and specifically the work of Leopold Senghor Aim Césaire and Jean Paul Sartre Next it shifts the focus to Frantz Fanon's discourse on radical disalienation and revolutionary decolonization Finally it offers an extended engagement of Cabral's critical theory and contributions to the Africana tradition of critical theory Ultimately Concepts of Cabralism chronicles and critiques revisits and revises the black radical tradition with an eye toward the ways in which classical black radicalism informs or should inform not only contemporary black radicalism African nationalism and Pan Africanism but also contemporary efforts to create a new anti racist anti sexist anti capitalist anti colonialist and anti imperialist critical theory of contemporary society what has come to be called Africana critical theory

We Are an African People Russell Rickford, 2016-01-14 During the height of the Black Power movement of the late 1960s and 1970s dozens of Pan African nationalist private schools from preschools to post secondary ventures appeared in urban settings across the United States The small independent enterprises were often accused of teaching hate and were routinely harassed by authorities Yet these institutions served as critical mechanisms for transmitting black consciousness Founded by activist intellectuals and other radicalized veterans of the civil rights movement the schools strove not simply to bolster the academic skills and self esteem of inner city African American youth but also to decolonize minds and foster a vigorous and regenerative sense of African identity In We Are An African People historian Russell Rickford traces the intellectual lives of these autonomous black institutions established dedicated to pursuing the self determination that the integrationist civil rights movement had failed to provide Influenced by Third World theorists and anticolonial campaigns organizers of the schools saw formal education as a means of creating a vanguard of young activists devoted to the struggle for black political sovereignty throughout the world Most of the institutions were short lived and they offered only modest numbers of children a genuine alternative to substandard inner city public schools Yet their stories reveal much about Pan Africanism as a social and intellectual movement and as a key part of an indigenous black nationalism Rickford uses this largely forgotten movement to explore a particularly fertile period of political cultural and social revitalization that strove to revolutionize African American life and envision an alternate society Reframing the post civil rights era as a period of innovative organizing he depicts the prelude to the modern Afrocentric movement and contributes to the ongoing conversation about urban educational reform race and identity
