Communities in a Globalising World Lena Dominelli,2018-02-06 Revitalising Communities in a Globalising World explores the opportunities and constraints that the dynamics of globalisation present for human development in a range of different countries and situations Arguing that globalisation is currently a system of organising social relations along neoliberal lines this timely volume examines practical examples of how people respond to significant social changes in their communities The idea of communities is deconstructed to show that globalisation has collapsed the boundaries of time space and place in ways that have exacerbated inequalities at the same time giving rise to unparalleled riches for some The book encompasses a number of case studies that speak to policymakers practitioners educators and students interested in studying globalisation and making the most of its potential for change Reconfiguring Citizenship Mehmoona Moosa-Mitha,2016-03-23

Citizenship as a status assumes that all those encompassed by the term citizen are included albeit within the boundaries of the nation state Yet citizenship practices can be both inclusionary and exclusionary with far reaching ramifications for both nationals and non nationals This volume explores the concept of citizenship and its practices within particular contexts and nation states to identify whether its claims to inclusivity are justified This will show whether the exclusionary dimensions experienced by some citizens and non citizens are linked to deficiencies in the concept country specific policies or how it is practised in different contexts The interrogation of citizenship is important in a globalising world where crossing borders raises issues of diversity and how citizenship status is framed This raises the issue of human rights and their protection within the nation state for people whose lifestyles differ from the prevailing ones Besides highlighting the importance of human rights and social justice as integral to citizenship it affirms the role of the nation state in safeguarding these matters It does so by building on Indigenous peoples insights about linking citizenship to connections to other people and the environment and arguing for the inalienability and portability of citizenship rights guaranteed collectively through international level agreements These issues are of particular concern to social workers given that they must act in accordance with the principles of democracy equality and empowerment However citizenship issues are often inadequately articulated in social work theory and practice This book redresses this by providing social workers with insights knowledge values and skills about citizenship practices to enable them to work more effectively with those excluded from enjoying the full rights of citizenship in the nation states in which they reside

Gosek, 2025-04-29T00:00:00Z Canadian child welfare policies and practices have been central to maintaining a settler colonial nation by controlling and managing the childhoods and future lives of children While ostensibly grounded in the best interests of the child child welfare policies and practices far too often make the lives of young people more precarious because they are stratified along race and class lines rather than caring for their wellbeing There have been dire consequences for Indigenous communities but also for Black newcomer non citizen and poor people who are also disproportionately the primary focus of child welfare The contributors to this book reveal these unjust conditions so that workers can contribute to the ongoing transformation of child welfare to facilitate child wellbeing The third edition of Walking This Path Together continues the transformative vision of the first two editions and charts a new way forward. There are several new chapters and authors who focus on Māori kinship protocols, family group conferencing, decolonizing child welfare and the criminalization of newcomers, refugee children and Indigenous youth in care. Indigenous Data Sovereignty and Policy Maggie Walter, Tahu Kukutai, Stephanie Russo Carroll, Desi Rodriguez-Lonebear, 2020-10-29. This book examines how Indigenous Peoples around the world are demanding greater data sovereignty and challenging the ways in which governments have historically used Indigenous data to develop policies and programs. In the digital age, governments are increasingly dependent on data and data analytics to inform their policies and decision making. However, Indigenous Peoples have often been the unwilling targets of policy interventions and have had little say over the collection, use and application of data about them, their lands and cultures. At the heart of Indigenous Peoples' demands for change are the enduring aspirations of self-determination over their institutions, resources, knowledge and information systems. With contributors from Australia, Aotearoa New Zealand, North and South America and Europe, this book offers a rich account of the potential for Indigenous data sovereignty to support human flourishing and to protect against the ever-growing threats of data-related risks and harms.
