Werner, 2013-06-29 The present volume in the series focuses on homes residences and dwellings Although many fields have had a long standing interest in different aspects of home environments the topic has recently come to the forefront in the interdisciplinary environment and behavior field Researchers and theorists from many disciplines have begun to meet regularly share ideas and perspectives and move the investigation of psychological social and behavioral aspects of home environments to the central arena of environment and behavior studies This volume representative though not comprehensive attempts to provide a sampling of contemporary perspectives on the study of home environments As in previous volumes the authors are drawn from a variety of disciplines including environmental design fields of architecture and planning and from the social science fields of psychology sociology anthropology and history This diversity of authors and perspectives makes salient the principle that the study of homes in relation to behavior requires the contributions of many disciplines Moreover the chapters in this volume reflect an array of research and theoretical viewpoints different scales of home environments e.g. objects and areas the home as a whole the home as embedded in neighborhood and communities etc design and policy issues and necessarily a comparative and cross cultural perspective Home environments are at the core of human life in most cultures and it is hoped that the contributions to this volume display the excitement potential and importance of research and theory on homes

Indigenous Environmental Knowledge John

Edington, 2017-09-05 This book examines comprehensively for the first time the scope and accuracy of indigenous environmental knowledge It shows that in some spheres including agriculture house design fuel and water manipulation the high reputation of local observers is well deserved and often sufficiently insightful to warrant wider imitation However it also reveals that in certain matters notably some aspects of health care and wild species population management local knowledge systems are conspicuously unsound Not all the difficulties are of the communities own making some stem from external factors outside their control However in either case remedial measures can be suggested and this book describes especially for the benefit of practitioners what steps might be taken in rural communities to improve the quality of life The possibility of useful transfers of information from local settings to Western ones is not ignored and forms the subject of the book's final chapter
