Shock Therapy and Privatization Dan Grindea, 1997 Since it was first published more than forty years ago Sources of Japanese Tradition Volume 2 has been considered the authoritative sourcebook for readers and scholars interested in Japan from the eighteenth century to the post World War II period Now greatly expanded to include the entire twentieth century and beginning in 1600 Sources of Japanese Tradition presents writings by modern Japan s most important philosophers religious figures writers and political leaders The volume also offers extensive introductory essays and commentary to assist in understanding the documents historical settings and significance Wonderfully varied in its selections this eagerly anticipated expanded edition has revised many of the texts from the original edition and added a great many not included or translated before New additions include documents on the postwar era the importance of education in the process of modernization and women s issues Beginning with documents from the founding of the Tokugawa shogunate the collection s essays manifestos religious tracts political documents and memoirs reflect major Japanese religious philosophical social and political movements Subjects covered include the spread of neo Confucian and Buddhist teachings Japanese poetry and aesthetics and the Meiji Restoration Other documents reflect the major political trends and events of the period the abolition of feudalism agrarian reform the emergence of political parties and liberalism and the Sino Japanese and Russo Japanese Wars The collection also includes Western and Japanese impressions of each other through Western religious missions and commercial and cultural exchanges These selections underscore Japanese and Western apprehension of and fascination with each other As Japan entered the twentieth century new political and social movements Marxism anarchism socialism nationalism and feminism entered the national consciousness Later readings in the collection look at the buildup to war with the United States military defeat and American occupation Documents from the postwar period echo Japan's struggle with its own history and its development as a capitalist democracy The Restructuring of Romania's Economy Raphael

Shen, 1997-11-20 Given the political financial social and economic conditions inherited from Communist rule Romania's new government concluded that a shock therapy approach to reform would create unmanageable chaos and enduring instability Though committed to economic liberalization decisionmakers espoused a gradualist approach to economic reform The government pursued its objectives by implementing policies it considered functionally operational Although Romania experienced the macro dislocations and downturns that are common in transitional economies in the region the country sustained shallower recessions lower inflationary spirals and shorter production losses than many reforming economies This study analyzes how against calculated probabilities and within a relatively short time period Romania has stabilized and assembled all the basic ingredients for a successful transformation from a centralized system to a market driven economy The lessons derivable from Romania's relatively successful experiment with systemic transformation could be beneficial to reform architects in all newly liberalized economies in Eastern Europe The conclusions of this study reinforce the view that it is imperative to examine and foster the existing preconditions including political institutional and financial components before subjecting an economy to extensive and intensive shocks that could be judiciously mitigated or circumvented Unlike other newly liberalized economies in Eastern Europe where the once disgraced Communists have returned to power sympathy for a centralized system has been steadily and swiftly declining in Romania The primary factor in Romania's success the author claims is its circumspect approach to reform Privatization, Liberalization, and Destruction László

Csaba, 1994 The volume is a selection of papers devoted to key issues of economic transformation privatization liberalization the role of the financial sector and external economic relations The interplay of these four areas of transition strategy forms the backbone of the collection An Antidote to Shock Therapy Peter Murrell, 1992 Privatization and Economic

Reform in Central Europe Dennis A. Rondinelli, 1994-01-26 A fundamental characteristic of the global economy during the 1990s is the reinvigoration of the private sector as the driving force for economic growth and social progress This book surveys Central Europe during the early period of transition from late 1989 to early 1993 when governments were experimenting with privatization and economic reform and assesses how privatization and economic reform policies have changed the business climate there Rondinelli and his contributors provide an overview of economic reforms in Central European countries offer a framework by which to compare them describe the approaches to privatization their governments adopted and identify the problems and challenges that each country faces in attempting to create a market oriented economy The result is a valuable resource for international management international trade policy makers and scholars of international business The process of economic restructuring is especially important and particularly complex in Central Europe where Poland Hungary the Czech and Slovak Republics Slovenia and other independent states of former Yugoslavia are struggling to transform themselves from socialist to market economies Each country faces equally complex challenges however in creating a new business climate that will nourish domestic enterprise and attract investments by multinational corporations These challenges include 1 privatizing state owned enterprises that have dominated the economies of socialist countries 2 developing public policies and programs that support the private sector especially small and medium scale enterprises 3 decentralizing the state administrative structure to allow regional and local governments to play a more active role in providing public services and supporting private enterprise and 4 restructuring industry agriculture and services in order to diversify and reinvigorate the economic base including infrastructure of regions surrounding cities that are still dominated by heavy and now largely obsolescent manufacturing industries This book surveys the situation in Central Europe during the early period of transition in the early 1990s when governments in all four countries were experimenting with privatization and economic reform The authors assess how privatization and economic reform policies have changed the business climate in this important region of the world The editor provides an overview of economic reforms in Central European countries offers a framework by which to compare them describes the approaches to privatization their governments adopted and identifies the problems and challenges that each country faces in attempting to create a market oriented economy

From Shock to Therapy Grzegorz W. Kołodko, 2000 The great transformation undertaken by the countries of the former communist bloc exhibits immense diversity in terms of initial conditions shifting target models consistency paths speed progress to date and economic performance This is the first comprehensive study of the economics and politics of postsocialism to be written by an author so deeply and so successfully involved in the reform process Many people writing on the reform process offer advice that is not really credible as a member of the Polish government and architect of the successful Polish reform Grzegorz Kolodko actually solved many of the difficulties of transition which allows him to come forward here with policy proposals and long term forecasts The treatment of the transition from plan to market as a historical process is an important feature of the book The author claims that there is no historical fatality that sound policies in the present are more determining than the favourable or unfavourable legacies of the past The aim is to create and maintain the conditions for sustainable growth and durable development

Privatization, Stabilization, and Liberalization Chengxin Ouyang, 1999 The Romanian Economic Reform Program Mr. Dimitri G. Demekas, Mr. Mohsin S. Khan, 1991-06-15 This paper outlines the main characteristics and the development of the centrally planned economic system in Romania before the beginnings of the transition to a market economy it then presents the design objectives and implementation of the reform program

Privatization and Restructuring in Central and Eastern Europe Gerhard Pohl, 1997-01-01 Why do women in most developing countries lag behind men in literacy Why do women get less schooling than men This anthology examines the educational decisions that deprive women of an equal education It assembles the most up to date data organized by region Each paper links the data with other measures of economic and social development This approach helps explain the effects different levels of education have on womens fertility mortality rates life expectancy and income Also described are the effects of women s education on family welfare The authors look at family size and women s labor status and earnings They examine child and maternal health as well as investments in children s education Their investigation demonstrates that women with a better education enjoy greater economic growth and provide a more nurturing family life It suggests that when a country denies women an equal education the nation s welfare suffers Current strategies used to improve schooling for girls and women are examined in detail The authors suggest an ambitious agenda for educating women It seeks to close the gender gap by the next century Published for The World Bank by The Johns Hopkins University Press     Privatization in Eastern Europe ,1992     Shock Therapy in Eastern Europe Amy L. Sandler,1997

Privatization and Democratization in Central and Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union Valentine M. Moghadam,1992

Privatization in Central and Eastern Europe Demetrius S. Iatridis,June G. Hopps,1998-08-27 These essays examine how privatization in Central and Eastern Europe is perceived and implemented showing how economic reform is pursued at the expense of social welfare     Economic Transformation in Eastern Europe ,1993     Going to Market Manuel Hinds,Gerhard Pohl,1991 Insights into the major task of privatization facing Eastern European countries about the key decisions to be made and about such important issues as whether to sell state enterprises or give them away and to whom and in what sequence
