Television/radio Age ,1986 Australian Newspapers in the Television Age, 1956-2006 Rodney Tiffen,2025-04-15 This book looks at Australian newspapers over the half century following the introduction of television in 1956 Through a quantitative study it illuminates how the nature of news has changed and how central journalistic practices have developed It examines newspapers changing size and structure their story priorities their use of visual aids and interpretive frames their changing range and treatment of sources and how these changes affected their political and international coverage The content analysis shows a dominant theme of growth and improvement Newspapers offered their readers much more at the end of the half century than at the beginning The much larger volume of news was presented in more visually attractive and reader friendly ways than before News agendas expanded in response both to changing reader interests and a changing political environment Newspapers had a more active orientation towards using a wider range of sources All papers shared in the major trends but to varying degrees so that by the end of the period there were sharper differences between the papers than at the beginning Mapping the multi dimensional nature of change in this pivotal period lays a groundwork for analysing the changing nature of journalism during the existential crisis that news organisations are now facing during the digital age

European Cinemas in the Television Age Dorota Ostrowska,2007-02-01 European Cinemas in the Television Age is a radical attempt to rethink the post war history of European cinemas The authors approach the subject from the perspective of television s impact on the culture of cinema s production distribution consumption and reception Thus they indicate a new direction for the debate about the future of cinema in Europe In every European country television has transformed economic technological and aesthetic terms in which the process of cinema production had been conducted Television s growing popularity has drastically reshaped cinema s audiences and forced governments to introduce policies to regulate the interaction between cinema and television in the changing and dynamic audio visual environment It is cinematic criticism which was slowest in coming to terms with the presence of television and therefore most instrumental in perpetuating the view of cinema as an isolated object of aesthetic critical and academic inquiry The recognition of the impact of television upon European cinemas offers a more authentic and richer picture of cinemas in Europe which are part of the complex audiovisual matrix including television and new media

 Para Interactivity and the Appeal of Television in the Digital Age focuses on broadcast television's attempts to transition from a mass medium to one which addresses viewers as potentially active participants in simulated interactive communication. It explores both the transformations and the continued popularity of television in an age of social media and competition from interactive digital media. It presents the concept of para interactivity which contains features or elements that echo interactive communication processes considered characteristic of digital media and participatory culture translated into television's language. This novel idea helps to understand contemporary television and identify current and traditional strategies it employs in order to survive in a changing media environment      Television in Africa in the Digital Age Gilbert Motsaathebe, Sarah H. Chiumbu, 2021-04-21
 This book places television in Africa in the digital context. It addresses the onslaught of multimedia platforms, digital migration and implication of this technology for society. The discussions in the chapters contained in this book encompass a wide range of issues such as digital disruption of television news, internet television and video on demand, platforms adaptations, digital migration, business strategies and management approaches, PBS consumption patterns, scheduling and programming, evangelical television and many others. The book is an important reading for academics, students and television practitioners. It offers an insightful view of television in Africa      Consuming Technologies Eric Hirsch, Roger Silverstone, 2003-09-02
 Consuming Technologies opens for analysis some crucial but rarely examined areas of social, cultural and economic life. At its core is a concern with the complex set of relationships that mark and define the place of the domestic in the modern world and an explanation of the relationship between the domestic and public spheres as they are mediated by consumption and technology      Media Ownership in Africa in the Digital Age Winston Mano, Loubna El Mkaouar, 2022-10-24
 Who owns the media and communications in Africa today and with what implications? The book elegantly answers this urgent question by unpacking multiple dimensions of media ownership through rare and authoritative perspectives including both historical and contemporary digital developments. It traces the evolving forms of ownership of media and communications in specific African contexts, showing how they interact with broader changes in and outside the continent. The book also shows how Big Techs such as Meta (formerly known as Facebook) are involved in a scramble for Africa's digital ecosystem and how their advance brings both opportunities and concerns about ownership and control. The chapters analyse evolving forms of ownership and their implications on media concentration and democracy across Africa. The book offers a nuanced account of how media ownership structures are in some instances captured with an ever-growing and complex ecosystem that also has new opportunities for public interest media. Offering a significant representation of the trends and diversity of existing media systems, the book goes beyond the postcolonial geographical divisions of North and Sub-Saharan Africa to highlight common patterns and significant similarities and differences of communications ownerships between and within African countries. The contributors expose media and communications ownership patterns in Africa that are centralised and yet decentralising and in some cases battling resurging and globalising
