A History of Radioecology Patrick C. Kangas, 2022-12-26 This book presents a history of radioecology from World War II through to the critical years of the Cold War finishing with a discussion of recent developments and future implications for the field Drawing on a vast array of primary sources the book reviews synthesizes and discusses the implications of the ecological research supported by the Atomic Energy Commission AEC of the United States government from World War II to the early 1970s This was a critical period in the history of ecology characterized by a transition from the older largely descriptive studies of communities of plants and animals to the modern form of the science involving functional studies of energy flow and mineral cycling in ecosystems This transition was in large part due to the development of radioecology which was a by product of the Cold War and the need to understand and predict the consequences of a nuclear war that was planned but has never occurred The book draws on important case studies such as the Pacific Proving Grounds the Nevada Test Site El Verde in Puerto Rico the Brookhaven National Laboratory and recent events such as the nuclear disasters at Chernobyl and Fukushima By revisiting studies and archived information from the Cold War era this book offers lessons from the history of radioecology to provide background and perspective for understanding possible present day impacts from issues of radiation risks associated with nuclear power generation and waste disposal Post Cold War developments in radioecology will be also reviewed and contrasted with the AEC supported ecology research for further perspectives This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of radioecology environmental pollution environmental technology bioscience and environmental history

Water and the Rainforest in Malaysian Borneo Ian Douglas, 2022-01-01 This volume synthesizes and analyzes thirty years of hydrological research in the Danum Valley Conservation Area a lowland dipterocarp rainforest in Sabah Malaysia Ian Douglas explores the role of water in the rainforest ecosystem setting out the ecological climatological and geological context of present day hydrological processes soil erosion and stream sedimentation He emphasizes the role of extreme events and natural disturbances in sediment supplies and the evolution of drainage pathways and explains the pathways of rainfall and stream sediment Douglas then explores the impacts caused by logging the extreme pulses of sedimentation and the effects of log removal and logging road construction examining the effects of major storms in the 20 years after tree harvesting Methods of minimizing logging damage to soils and streams are discussed and the effects on flora and fauns are considered

Student-originated Studies Projects, 1971 Abstracts of scientific studies dealing with local problems which have immediate relevance to society Student-originated Studies Projects National Science Foundation (U.S.), Tropical Rainforest Research — Current Issues D.S. Edwards, W.E. Booth, S.C. Choy, 2012-12-06 Proceedings of the conference held in Bandar Seri Begawan April 1993 Tropical Forests: Management and Ecology Ariel E. Lugo, Carol Lowe, 2012-12-06 Forestry professors used to remind students that whereas physicians bury their mistakes foresters die before theirs are noticed But good institutions live longer than the scientists who contribute to building them and the half century of work of the USDA Forest Service's Institute of Tropical Forestry ITF is in plain view an unprecedented corpus of accomplishments that would instill pride in any organization There is scarcely anyone interested in current issues of tropical forestry who would not benefit from a refresher course in ITF's findings its early collaboration with farmers to establish plantations its successes in what we now call social forestry its continuous improvement of nursery practices its screening trials of native species its development of wood processing technologies appropriate for developing countries its thorough analysis of tropical forest function and its holistic approach toward conservation of endangered species Fortunately ITF has a long history of information exchange through teaching like many others I got my own start in tropical forest ecology from just such a course in Puerto Rico And long before politicians recognized the global importance of tropical forestry the ITF staff served actively as ambassadors of the discipline visiting tropical countries everywhere to learn and when invited to do so to help solve local problems It is a general principle of biogeography that species turnover rates on islands are higher than those on continents Inevitably the same is true of scientists assigned to work on islands Earth Notes,1991 Nuclear Science Abstracts ,1971 Tropical Forests Of Oceania Joshua A. Bell,Paige West,Colin Filer,2015-08-31 The tropical forests of Oceania are an enduring source of concern for indigenous communities for the migrants who move to them for the states that encompass them within their borders for the multilateral institutions and aid agencies and for the non governmental organisations that focus on their conservation Grounded in the perspective of political ecology contributors to this volume approach forests as socially alive spaces produced by a confluence of local histories and global circulations In doing so they collectively explore the multiple ways in which these forests come into view and therefore into being Exploring the local dynamics within and around these forests provides an insight into regional issues that have global resonance Intertwined as they are with cosmological beliefs and livelihoods as sites of biodiversity and Western desire these forests have been and are still being transformed by the interaction of foreign and local entities Focusing on case studies from Papua New Guinea the Solomon Islands and the Gambier Islands this volume brings new perspectives on how Pacific Islanders continue to creatively engage with the various processes at play in and around their forests Research in Early Childhood Education for Sustainability Julie Davis,Sue Elliott,2014-06-20 Sustainability is a global issue that urgently needs addressing and for which the most serious consequences are for children and future generations This insightful research text tackles one of the most significant contemporary issues of our times the nexus between society and environment and how early childhood education can contribute to sustainable living By offering international and multidisciplinary research perspectives on Early Childhood Education for Sustainability each chapter explores and investigates the complex topic of sustainability and its relationship to early childhood education A particular emphasis that runs through this text is young children as empowered citizens capable of both contributing to and creating change for sustainability The chapter authors work from or are aligned with a transformative education paradigm that suggests the socio constructivist frameworks currently underpinning Early Childhood Education require reframing in light of the social transformations necessary to address humanity s unsustainable unjust and unhealthy living patterns This research text is designed to be provocative and challenging in so doing it seeks to encourage exploration of current understandings about Early Childhood Education for Sustainability offers new dimensions for more deeply informed practice and proposes avenues for further research in this field Land Use, Nature Conservation and the Stability of Rainforest Margins in Southeast Asia Gerhard Gerold,Michael Fremerey,Edi Guhardja,2013-06-29 Southeast Asia constitutes one of the world s most extended rainforest regions It is characterized by a high degree of biodiversity and contains a large variety of endemic species Moreover these forests provide a number of important and singular ecosystem services like erosion protection and provision of high quality water which cannot be replaced by alternative ecosystems However various forms of encroachment mostly those made by human interventions seriously threaten the continuance of rainforests in this area There is ample evidence that the rainforest resources apart from large scale commercial logging are exposed to danger particularly from its margin areas These areas which are characterized by intensive man nature interaction have been identified as extremely fragile systems The dynamic equilibrium that balances human needs and interventions on the one hand and natural regeneration capacity on the other is at stake The decrease of rainforest resources is to a substantial degree connected with the destabilization of these systems Accordingly the search for measures and processes which prevent destabilization and promote stability is regarded as imperative This refers to both the human and the natural part of the forest margin ecosystem
