

A woman with blonde hair, wearing an orange dress, is leaning over a doorway. She is holding a large, silver knife in her right hand. Two children, a boy and a girl, are standing in the doorway looking out. The boy is wearing a white shirt and dark shorts, and the girl is wearing a white shirt and green pants. They are both looking out at a man standing on a sidewalk in the distance. The man is wearing a blue shirt and dark pants, and he has a sad expression on his face. The background shows a house and some trees.

Shes Gonna Be:

The Conscious Hours Stephen Lissberger, 2005-10 Represented in this novel is a microcosm of what lies beneath the civilized facade of a New York society and what lies are fed to gullible believers Any facsimile to real persons or events may or may not be coincidental That primarily depends on the point of view of the guilty as well as the innocent and how they perceive themselves Eric Soloman represents an effort to coerce the mind s eye to focus on two perspectives at the same time that of the participant and that of the observer The insurmountable anxieties throttling his ambition and the community in which he lives comprise the collisions that drive him to the point of inevitable madness The contagious complacency of a self serving society is the only thing separating him from possible acceptance His struggles reflect the natural instincts of survival His heart houses two windows One through which he sees COURAGE the other COWARDICE in his uncertain quest for life s elusive meaning
