Celebrity T. Mole, 2007-07-31 This book offers a new history and theory of modern celebrity It argues that celebrity is a cultural apparatus that emerged in response to the Romantic industrialization of print and culture It investigates the often strained interactions of artistic endeavour and commercial enterprise and the place of celebrity culture in history of the self

Romantic Writing and the Empire of Signs Karen Fang, 2010-02-02 Nineteenth century periodicals frequently compared themselves to the imperial powers then dissecting the globe and this interest in imperialism can be seen in the exotic motifs that surfaced in works by such late Romantic authors as John Keats Charles Lamb James Hogg Letitia Landon and Lord Byron Karen Fang explores the collaboration of these authors with periodical magazines to show how an interdependent relationship between these visual themes and rhetorical style enabled these authors to model their writing on the imperial project Fang argues that in the decades after Waterloo late Romantic authors used imperial culture to capitalize on the contemporary explosion of periodical magazines This proliferation of post Napoleonic writing often referencing exotic locales both revises longstanding notions about literary orientalism and reveals a remarkable synthesis of Romantic idealism with contemporary cultural materialism that heretofore has not been explored Indeed in interlocking case studies that span the reach of British conquest ranging from Greece China and Egypt to Italy and Tahiti Fang challenges a major convention of periodical publication While periodicals are usually thought to be defined by time this account of the geographic attention exerted by late Romantic authors shows them to be equally concerned with space With its exploration of magazines and imperialism as a context for Romantic writing culture and aesthetics this book will appeal not only to scholars of book history and reading cultures but also to those of nineteenth century British writing and history Manly Leaders in

Nineteenth-Century British Literature Daniela Garofalo, 2009-01-01 From the 1790s to the 1840s the fear that Britain had become too effeminate to protect itself against the anarchic forces unleashed by the French Revolution produced in many British writers of the period a desire to portray strong leaders who could control the democratic and commercial forces of modernization While it is commonplace in Romantic studies to emphasize that Romantic writers are interested in the solitary genius or hero who separates himself from the community to pursue his own creative visions Daniela Garofalo argues instead that Romantic and early Victorian writers are interested in charismatic males military heroes tyrants kings and captains of industry who organize modern political and economic communities sometimes by example and sometimes by direct engagement Reading works by William Godwin William Wordsworth Jane Austen Lord Byron William Hazlitt Thomas Carlyle and Charlotte Bront Garofalo shows how these leaders endowed with an inherent virility rather than simply inherited rank

Individually and collectively these essays establish a new direction for scholarship that examines the crucial activities of reading and writing about literature and how they relate to authenticity Though authenticity is a term deep in literary resonance and rich in philosophical complexity its connotations relative to the study of literature have rarely been explored or exploited through detailed critical examination of individual writers and their works Here the notion of the authentic is recognised first and foremost as central to a range of literary and philosophical ways of thinking particularly for nineteenth century poets and novelists Distinct from studies of literary fakes and forgeries this collection focuses on authenticity as a central paradigm for approaching literature and its formation that bears on issues of authority self reliance truth originality the valid and the real and the genuine and inauthentic whether applied to the self or others Topics and authors include the

Stauffer, 2005-08-11 The Romantic age was one of anger and its consequences revolution and reaction terror and war Andrew M Stauffer explores the changing place of anger in the literature and culture of the period as English men and women rethought their relationship to the aggressive passions in the wake of the French Revolution Drawing on diverse fields and discourses such as aesthetics politics medicine and the law and tracing the classical legacy the Romantics inherited Stauffer charts the period s struggle to define the relationship of anger to justice and the creative self In their poetry and prose Romantic authors including Blake Coleridge Godwin Shelley and Byron negotiate the meanings of indignation and rage amidst a clamorous debate over the place of anger in art and in civil society This innovative book has much to contribute to the understanding of Romantic literature and the cultural history of the emotions

Unquiet Things Colin Jager, 2015 In Great Britain during the Romantic period governmental and social structures were becoming more secular as religion was privatized and depoliticized If the discretionary nature of religious practice permitted spiritual freedom and social differentiation however secular arrangements produced new anxieties Unquiet Things investigates the social and political disorders that arise within modern secular cultures and their expression in works by Jane Austen Horace Walpole Samuel Taylor Coleridge Lord Byron and Percy Shelley among others Emphasizing secularism rather than religion as its primary analytic category Unquiet Things demonstrates that literary writing possesses a distinctive ability to register the discontent that characterizes the mood of secular modernity Colin Jager places Romantic era writers within the context of a longer series of transformations begun in the Reformation and identifies three ways in which romanticism and secularism interact the melancholic mood brought on by movements of reform the minoritizing capacity of literature to measure the disturbances produced by new arrangements of state power and a prospective romantic thinking Jager calls after the secular The poems novels and letters of the romantic period reveal uneasy traces of the spiritual past haunted by elements that trouble secular politics at the same time they imagine new and more equitable possibilities for the future In the twenty first century Jager contends we are still living within the terms of the romantic response to secularism when literature and philosophy first took account of the consequences of modernity
