Dennis W. Harding, 2004-08-26 The Iron Age in Northern Britain examines the impact of the Roman expansion northwards and the native response to the Roman occupation on both sides of the frontiers It traces the emergence of historically recorded communities in the post Roman period and looks at the clash of cultures between Celts and Romans Picts and Scots Northern Britain has too often been seen as peripheral to a core located in south eastern England Unlike the Iron Age in southern Britain the story of which can be conveniently terminated with the Roman conquest the Iron Age in northern Britain has no such horizon to mark its end The Roman presence in southern and eastern Scotland was militarily intermittent and left untouched large tracts of Atlantic Scotland for which there is a rich legacy of Iron Age settlement continuing from the mid first millennium BC to the period of Norse settlement in the late first millennium AD Here D W Harding shows that northern Britain was not peripheral in the Iron Age it simply belonged to an Atlantic European mainstream different from southern England and its immediate continental neighbours Early Medieval Studies in Memory of Patrick Wormald Stephen Baxter, Catherine Karkov, Janet L. Nelson, David Pelteret, 2017-05-15 Patrick Wormald was a brilliant interpreter of the Early Middle Ages whose teaching writings and generous friendship inspired a generation of historians and students of politics law language literature and religion to focus their attention upon the world of the Anglo Saxons and the Franks Leading British American and continental scholars his colleagues friends and pupils here bear witness to his seminal influence by presenting a collection of studies devoted to the key themes that dominated his work kingship law and society ethnic religious national and linguistic identities the power of images pictorial or poetic in shaping political and religious institutions Closely mirroring the interests of their honorand the collection not only underlines Patrick Wormald s enormous contribution to the field of Anglo Saxon studies but graphically demonstrates his belief that early medieval England and Anglo Saxon law could only be understood against a background of research into contemporary developments in the nearby Welsh Scottish Irish and Frankish kingdoms He would have been well pleased therefore that this volume should make such significant advances in our understanding of the world of Bede of the dynasty of King Alfred and also of the workings of English law between the seventh and the twelfth century Moreover he would have been particularly delighted at the rich comparisons and contrasts with Celtic societies offered here and with the series of fundamental reassessments of aspects of Carolingian Francia Above all these studies present fundamental reinterpretations not only of published written sources and their underlying manuscript evidence but also of the development of some of the dominant ideas of that era In both their scope and the quality of the scholarship the collection stands as a fitting tribute to the work and life of Patrick Wormald and his lasting contribution to early medieval studies

Pictish Progress ,2010-11-11 This publication is the culmination of an extended programme of conferences that have sought to mark the contribution of F T Wainwright to Pictish studies and in particular the 50th anniversary of The Problem of the Picts The book is firmly in the tradition of interdisciplinary scholarship Wainwright did so much to promote and brings together much fresh thinking on the archaeological art historical place name and historical understanding of Northern Britain in the second half of the first millennium AD Within a wider European framework it addresses questions of landscape material culture and mentalities revealing some of the different strategies by which the Picts made their world All the studies are accessibly presented to serve the interests of students teachers and anyone interested in the roots of European civilisation Contributors are Barbara E Crawford Nicholas Evans Iain Fraser James Fraser Meggen Gondek Stratford Halliday Andrew Heald Kellie Meyer Gordon Noble Robert D Stevick Simon Taylor and Sarah Winlow

The Chapel and Burial Ground on St Ninian's Isle, Shetland: Excavations Past and Present: v. 32 Rachel C. Barrowman,2017-12-02 This volume is the definitive account of the excavation which led to the discovery of the magnificent hoard of 28 pieces of Pictish silverware on St Ninian's Isle Shetland in 1958 It includes a reassessment of the original archives and finds including an ogham stone found on the site in 1876 and a fantastic collection of glass beads as well as several new small scale excavations on the site of the chapel and its burial ground Taken together this work reveals a long sequence of settlement beginning in the Iron Age The first church was built on the site in the 8th century and accompanied by a long cist cemetery with cross incised stones and shrine sculpture The church may have continued in use into the 9th or 10th centuries and the recent work has confirmed that the famous hoard was buried into its floor There was a degree of continuity between the pre Christian and Christian burials with evidence that the site was a special place for burial before the advent of Christianity The report describes these burials in detail ending the story sometime between the 11th and end of the 12th centuries when an adult male who had died a violent death was moved to be buried on the site Thereafter the site was inundated with wind blown sand A new chapel with an accompanying long cist cemetery was then built above the earlier church and a chancel was added later The associated graveyard continued in use until around 1840 long after the building was demolished The Iron Age Round-House D. W. Harding, 2009-11-19 In contrast to Continental Europe where the Iron Age is abundantly represented by funerary remains as well as by hill forts and major centres the British Iron Age is mainly represented by its settlement sites and especially by houses of circular ground plan apparently in marked contrast to the Central and Northern European tradition of rectangular houses In lowland Britain the evidence for timber round houses comprises the footprint of post holes or foundation trenches in the Atlantic north and west the remains of monumental stone built houses survive as upstanding ruins testimony to the building skills of Iron Age engineers and masons D W Harding's fully illustrated study explores not just the architectural aspects of round houses but more importantly their role in the social economic and ritual structure of their communities and their significance as symbols of Iron Age society in the face of Romanization The Birsay Bay Project Christopher D. Morris, 2021-06-23 The Brough of Birsay was the power center of the Viking earldom of Orkney and is one of Historic Environment Scotland's key monuments and visitor attractions on the islands This publication is the culmination of 60 years of investigations that took place on the site between 1954 and 2014 This new volume incorporates comprehensive accounts of work undertaken by Dr Raleigh Radford and Mr Stewart Cruden between 1954 and 1964 excavations by the Viking and Early Settlement Research Project under the direction of the author on site between 1974 and 1981 a rescue excavation in 1993 a geophysical survey in 2007 and archival research up to 2014 Specialist artefactual and palaeobiological studies of metallurgical material ogham inscriptions and a gilt bronze mount of Insular origin are included together with re analysis of the radiocarbon dates from all sites in Birsay Bay and a re assessment of the architecture and dating of the church and related buildings on the Brough itself The final two chapters put the Brough as both a Pictish power center and the hub of the Viking earldom in the overall context of Birsay Bay and Viking and late Norse Orkney and the wider world between the Pictish and late Norse Medieval periods As well as being the author's third and final volume reporting on work for the Birsay Bay Project this volume completes a trilogy of studies of the Brough itself alongside Mrs Cecil Curle's and Prof John Hunter's earlier monographs
