Excerpt from Seth's Brother's Wife: A Study of Life in the Greater New York This sunlight to reach him painted with warm tints many objects near at hand which it could not make picturesque The three great barns standing in the shadow to the south were rickety and ancient without being comely and the glare only made their awkward outlines and patched paintless surfaces the meaner the score of lean cows standing idly fetlock deep in the black mire of the barn yard or nipping the scant tufts of rank grass near the trough seemed all the dingier and scrawnier for the brilliancy of the light which covered them the broken gate the bars eked out with a hop pole the wheelbarrow turned shiftlessly against a break in the wall the mildewed well curb with its antiquated reach all seemed in this glow of dying day to be conscious of exhibiting at its worse their squalid side The sunset could not well have illumined during that hour at least a less inspiring scene than this which alvira looking out as she talked or the hired man raising his head from over the apples could see from the kitchen door of Lemuel Fairchild's farm house But any student of his species would have agreed that in all the un inviting View Milton was the least attractive object As he rose to empty his pan within and start afresh he could be seen more fully He was clumsily cased from neck to ankles in brown overalls threadbare discoloured patched with mud about the knees and ragged edges lower down He wore rubber boots over the bulging legs of which the trousers came reluctantly and the huge feet of these were Slit down the instep His hat had been soft and black once now it seemed stiffened with dirt to which the afternoon milking had lent a new contribution of short reddish hair and was shapeless and colourless from age His back was narrow and bent and his long arms terminated in hands which it seemed sinful to have touch anything thereafter to be eaten Viewed from behind Milton appeared to be at least fifty But his face showed a somewhat younger man despite its sun baked lines and the frowzy beard which might be either the yellow of unkempt youth or the gray of untidy age In reality he was not yet thirty six About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
