Watts, Franz Andres Morrissey, 2019-01-31 The relationship between language and music has much in common rhythm structure sound metaphor Exploring the phenomena of song and performance this book presents a sociolinguistic model for analysing them Based on ethnomusicologist John Blacking's contention that any song performed communally is a folk song regardless of its generic origins it argues that folk song to a far greater extent than other song genres displays communal or inclusive types of performance The defining feature of folk song as a multi modal instantiation of music and language is its participatory nature making it ideal for sociolinguistic analysis In this sense a folk song is the product of specific types of developing social interaction whose major purpose is the construction of a temporally and locally based community Through repeated instantiations this can lead to disparate communities of practice which over time develop sociocultural registers and a communal stance towards aspects of meaningful events in everyday lives that become typical of a discourse community

The Magpies: The Ecology and Behaviour of Black-Billed and Yellow-Billed Magpies Tim Birkhead, 2010-10-30 Two species of magpie feature in this book the Black billed Magpie familiar to most Europeans which occurs throughout much of the northern hemisphere and the Yellow billed Magpie which is confined to California Magpies are unmistakable in their appearance voice and extrovert arrogant manner While their persecution at the hands of gamekeepers over the last hundred years has made them wary and difficult to approach a number of recent field studies both in Europe and North America have successfully revealed the intricacies of the magpie way of life Tim Birkhead has studied both species and has produced a fascinating account of their ecology and behaviour Many of the results from his ten year study of magpies in northern England are published here for the first time Particularly revealing however is his comparison of the two species and of their different races Magpies occur in a wide range of habitats including English farmland the deserts of North America the mountains of Saudi Arabia and the windswept plateaus of Tibet As this book explains magpies are able to exploit this diversity of habitats largely through their remarkably flexible social behaviour The Magpies covers all aspects of their lives including their marital relationships food hoarding behaviour longevity and survival nesting behaviour breeding success and their controversial relationship with man The text is supported by numerous photographs diagrams and tables and superb illustrations by David Quinn

Learning and Awareness Ference Marton, Shirley A. Booth, 1997 This book stems from more than 25 years of systematic research into the experience of learning undertaken by a research team trying to account for the obvious differences between more or less successful instances of learning in educational institutions The book offers an answer in terms of the discovery of critical differences in the structure of the learner's awareness and critical differences in the meaning of the learner's world. The authors offer a detailed account of the empirical findings that give rise to theoretical insights and discuss the particular form of qualitative research that has been employed and developed. The form of learning that is the object of study is considered to be the most fundamental form, namely a change in the learner's way of seeing, experiencing, handling, and understanding aspects of the world. The need for rigorous analysis of learning of specific subject matter, the individual construction of knowledge, and its social and cultural embeddedness, the defining features of rival approaches into research on learning, are reconciled from the approach adopted here into an intertwined and whole experience of learning. The learner's experience is always one of learning something in some way and in some context, by holding the learner's experience of learning as the focus of study throughout and not studying the learning of the content and the acts and the context as separate and distinct. The content, the act, and the context remain united as constituents of the learner's experience. By empirically revealing critical differences in the ways of experiencing these aspects of learning and by developing a theoretical framework for the dynamics through which change comes about in the learner's awareness, this book gradually leads the reader to a powerful new view of learning. Equipped with the analytical tools and conceptual apparatus to be found in this book, the reader will be empowered to learn and to assist others to learn by creating environments conducive to the most fundamental form of learning: experiencing aspects of the world in new ways.
