Morris, 1991-01-22 This book fills a significant gap in current process scholarship by providing a detailed exposition of Whitehead s and Hartshorne s social and political writings reconstructing their ideological commitments in depth and placing them in their historical context It focuses on four areas of inquiry the individual and society the ideals of freedom equality and democracy the use of coercive force within and between societies and the theory of social progress As each feature of their political thought is examined Morris shows how Whitehead s and Hartshorne s political commitments are reflected in their metaphysical principles Quranic Schools Helen N. Emerson, 1997-10-30 The consolidation of this symbolism into a rural cult marks the expropriation of the cosmos as part of the increasing power of the Cahokian rulers Pentecostalism and Politics in Africa Adeshina Afolayan, Olajumoke Yacob-Haliso, Toyin Falola, 2018-06-29 As the epicenter of Christianity has shifted towards Africa in recent decades Pentecostalism has emerged as a particularly vibrant presence on the continent This collection of essays offers a groundbreaking study of the complex links between politics and African Pentecostalism Situated at the intersection between the political the postcolonial and global neoliberal capitalism contributors examine the roots of the Pentecostal movement s extraordinary growth how Pentecostalism intervenes in key social and political issues such as citizenship party politics development challenges and identity and conversely how politics in Africa modulate the Pentecostal movement Pentecostalism and Politics in Africa offers a wide ranging picture of a central dimension of postcolonial African life opening up new directions for future research National Conference as a Strategy for Conflict Transformation and Peacemaking Jacques L. Koko, 2008-03-30 Events in the post Cold War era have challenged the notions of realism and realpolitik with an upsurge in intrastate conflicts involving other actors than just the state During this period the international community has witnessed the limitations of the tenets of realism for addressing disastrous civil wars or ethno political conflicts internal to the states Largely because of this and alongside the emerging field of conflict resolution in western countries transitional conflict resolution mechanisms emerged with characteristic multi track diplomacy orientations for solving national problems within African countries By the end of the 1980s and early 1990s several African countries including South Africa Burundi and Sierra Leone resorted to either a Truth and Reconciliation Commission or an international tribunal to handle violence and restore peace and justice In the same period other African countries opted for what was called national conference to solve their national problems and transform conflict into an opportunity for structural change In February 1990 the Republic of Benin a small nation state in West Africa achieved peace through a national conference The national conference in Benin was a national gathering for crisis resolution through social debates on critical issues facing the nation and political decision making for constructive changes As a pioneer Benin led the political change movement of the national conference and was later followed by eight other African countries namely Chad Congo Brazzaville Gabon Mali Niger Togo the Central African Republic and the former Zaire now known as the Democratic Republic of Congo

To date most of the existing literature on the subject explores the phenomenon of national conference as something of a prelude to political transition to multipartyism and democracy Part of the literature depicts the national conference as a civil coup d etat and recommends its institutionalization as a system for democratic transitions This book takes a different approach by conceptualizing the national conference phenomenon as a multi track diplomacy tool or as a process for conflict transformation and peacemaking Building upon theories of conflict and conflict resolution the author analyzes the national conference as a unique diplomatic approach to transforming national crisis which expands the scope of strategies for peacemaking

Emerging Adulthood in Hong Kong Chau-kiu Cheung,2017-09-22 How emerging adults broadly referring to those aged from 18 to 29 years old fare in civic engagement as compared with other adults is the focus of the present work The work takes civic engagement to comprise prosociality in civil society sustaining social institutions and challenging institutions Delineating a theoretical framework based on voluntaristic theory the work expects to find differences in civic engagement due to the voluntaristic mechanisms of power realization utilitarian optimization normative conformity and idealistic consistency maintenance in the emerging adult as compared with the other Using survey data from 25 878 Chinese adults in Hong Kong the work illustrates that the emerging adult is higher than is the other in challenging social institutions notably in terms radicalism and occupying protest Moreover the emerging adult is less prosocial in terms in community participation Meanwhile the emerging adult is not consistently different from the other in sustaining social institutions The findings are crucial given the control various background characteristics including age education marriage and employment These findings are therefore useful for illustrating social forces postulated in voluntaristic theory for explaining civic engagement Post-Cold War Conflicts in Africa Augustine C Ohanwe,2009-07-31 During the Cold War ideological and politico military rivalries mostly dictated the actions of the competing blocs including their involvement in foreign conflicts In Africa for instance the East West rivalry of the time not only fuelled conflicts but also appeared to undermine the use of diplomacy as a tool for peacemaking and conflict resolution With the fall of the Berlin Wall in 1989 and the demise of the Soviet Union however there was a transformation of the conflict arena in the continent which presented new opportunities and threats This therefore raises a fundamental question of how the end of the Cold War has affected the character of conflicts and their successful management in Africa Using Liberia and Somalia as case studies Post Cold War Conflicts in Africa analyses how the post Cold War conflicts in these two countries and their management differed from what they would have been during the Cold War era It shows for instance that while in Liberia the major powers appeared content to cede the management of the conflict to the sub regional group ECOMOG in Somalia the conflict appeared to be turned into an arena for simple military experiment without any of the old Cold War ideological rivalries playing any role in its trajectory or management The book argues that the end of the Cold War offers an opportunity for the successful use of a new approach to conflict management in the continent which would be anchored on traditional African diplomacy This new approach would involve a triumvirate of eminent men and women from the continent regional peacekeeping forces and the warring factions themselves working in concert to replace the rifle with talking till every one agrees Police Suicide John M. Vis,2009 Archaeology as the discipline that searches to explain the development of society by means of material remains has been avoiding the big issues involved with its research agenda The topic of social evolution is concealed by anxiety about previous paradigmatic malpractice and the primary archaeological division of the world in culture areas still suffers from the archaic methods by which it was established Archaeological inference of developing societies is weighed down by its choice of particularism within agency approaches and overtly reductionist due to the prevalence of statistical classificatory and biological approaches This book addresses these issues through a perspective on the spatial analysis of the built environment As one of the principal properties of our dataset as well as being the first materialisation of sociality such spatialities are suggested to be a fundamental key for enabling an understanding of the developing social identity of places regions and areas In order to arrive at a truly social inference of spatial datasets archaeology's usual analysis working from material remains towards socio cultural interpretations needs to be inverted The vantage point of this study consists of aprioristic social theory It constructs its arguments through an epistemological foundation comprising a selection of essential ideas regarding the three constitutive axes of developing societies time human action and human space As it recognises the inherent position of these axes combined in the discipline of human geography a historical comparison of these two disciplines presents the angle from which plausible theoretical advancements can be made The core of the book explores selected works of human geographers Allan Pred Benno Werlen and Andreas Koch against the backdrop of theories like structuration or systems theory phenomenology action theory and to a lesser extent Actor Network Theory and autopoiesis From this follows its own theoretical proposal called the social positioning of spatialities On this basis hypotheses for methodological opportunities are discussed establishing a research agenda Firmly placing its efforts in current paradigmatic debates in the discipline this study offers archaeological theorists an incentive to leave the safety of materially bound science and adapt an alternative perspective It is an attempt to put archaeology back in the forefront of the social theoretical debates it should contribute to
