

A night scene of a road with a large fire in the distance. The road is illuminated by streetlights, and the fire is a bright, intense orange and yellow, with some red smoke or flames visible. The scene is dark, with the fire being the primary light source.

When you look back,
The only things you can
Keep forever are the memories.

Looking Back A Of Memories

Pasquale De Marco

Looking Back A Of Memories:

Looking Back Lois Lowry, 1998 Moving Forward, Looking Back Sarah M. Misemer, 2010 Many critical shifts in concepts of time and society's consciousness of modernity were derived from the railway and World Standard Time in the nineteenth century. These innovations restructured the way people viewed the world and dealt with public and private time. The forward projectile motion along a linear track mimicked the passage of public chronological time. Conversely, the train also invoked a private nostalgic view of time as the traveler was yanked from his/her traditional view of the space-time continuum via the train's velocity. Travelers observed the landscape disappear in their backward glance from the window although the landscape and interior compartment's space remained stagnant. This optical illusion caused passengers to perceive the world in new ways. Thus, the train unveils a conflictive blend of nostalgia and progress in the River Plate as these countries move forward but look back.

Remember Me Davide Sisto, 2021-04-13 As the end of December draws near Facebook routinely sends users a short video entitled Your Year on Facebook. It lasts about a minute and brings together the images and posts that received the highest number of comments and likes over the last year. The video is rounded off with a message from Facebook that reads: Sometimes looking back helps us remember what matters most. Thanks for being here. It is this looking back increasingly the focus of social networks that is the inspiration behind Davide Sisto's brilliant reflection on how our relationship with remembering and forgetting is changing in the digital era. The past does not really exist; it is only a story we tell ourselves. But what happens when we tell this story not only to ourselves but also to our followers when it is recorded not only on our social media pages but also on the pages of hundreds or thousands of others making it something that can be viewed and referenced forever. Social media networks are becoming vast digital archives in which the past merges seamlessly with the present, slowly erasing our capacity to forget. And yet at the same time our memory is being outsourced to systems that we don't control and that could become obsolete at any time, cutting us off from our memories and risking total oblivion. This timely and thoughtful reflection on memory and forgetting in the digital age will be of interest to students and scholars in media studies and to anyone concerned with the ways our social and personal lives are changing in a world increasingly shaped by social media and the internet.
