comprehensive overview of Russian intellectual history How Russian Literature Became Great Rolf Hellebust, 2024-01-15

How Russian Literature Became Great explores the cultural and political role of a modern national literature orchestrated in a Slavonic key but resonating far beyond Russia's borders. Rolf Hellebust investigates a range of literary tendencies, philosophies, and theories from antiquity to the present: Roman jurisprudence to German Romanticism, French Enlightenment to Czech Structuralism, Herder to Hobsbawm, Samuel Johnson to Sainte Beuve, and so on. Besides the usual Russian suspects from Pushkin to Chekhov, Hellebust includes European writers: Byron and Shelley, Goethe and Schiller, Chateaubriand and Baudelaire, Dante, Mickiewicz, and more. As elsewhere, writing in Russia advertises itself via a canon of literary monuments constituting an atemporal ideal order among themselves. T. S. Eliot. And yet this is a tradition that could only have been born at a specific moment in the golden nineteenth century, age of historiography and nation building. The Russian example reveals the contradictions between immutability and innovation, universality and specificity at the heart of modern conceptions of tradition, from Sainte Beuve through Eliot and down to the present day. The conditions of its era of formation, the prominence of the crucial literary-historical question of the writer's social function, and the equation of literature with national identity make the Russian classical tradition the epitome of a unified cultural text with a complex narrative in which competing stories of progress and decline unfold through the symbolic biographical encounters of the authors who constitute its members. How Russian Literature Became Great thus offers a new paradigm for understanding the paradoxes of modern tradition.

Towards the Romantic Age Rudolf Neuhäuser, 2013-10-14 Russian literature between 1750 and the romantic age presents a confusing picture Various literary movements arose and existed side by side while new trends made themselves felt At no other time in the history of Russian literature was there a similar influx of widely disparate literary and intellectual influences from the West The complex evolution of literature is reflected in the area of literary classification Period terms have been used in great variety yet without general agreement as to the extent or even the nature of the trends described The essays of this study are devoted to two major literary trends of the 18th and early 19th century sentimentalism and preromanticism They aim to elucidate their evolution as well as at defining and describing the conceptual framework on which they rest Since the 18th century did not draw a sharp line between translated and original literature both have been included here Literary philosophical and general cultural influences from the West were of considerable importance for Russian literature The concepts motifs and themes which reached Russian writers in translations moulded their own original works The 18th century witnessed the formation of an adequate literary language which culminated in Karamzin's style The distinction of two stages in the development of sentimentalism as suggested here and the differentiation between both of them and a third literary trend preromanticism is an attempt to reflect adequately the rapid change in stylistic and poetic norms
