soak in its hot springs As a result these ryokan have enticed village youth to return home to take over successful family businesses and revive the community Chris McMorran spent nearly two decades researching ryokan in Kurokawa including a full year of welcoming guests carrying luggage scrubbing baths cleaning rooms washing dishes and talking with co workers and owners about their jobs relationships concerns and aspirations He presents the realities of ryokan work celebrated messy ignored exploitative and liberating and introduces the people who keep the inns running by making guests feel at home McMorran explores how Kurokawa s ryokan mobilize hospitality to create a rural escape from the globalized dimensions of everyday life in urban Japan Ryokan do this by fusing a romanticized notion of the countryside with an enduring notion of the hospitable woman embodied by nakai the hired female staff who welcome guests serve meals and clean rooms These women are the face of the ryokan But hospitality often hides a harsh reality McMorran found numerous nakai in their 50s 60s and 70s who escaped violent or unhappy marriages by finding employment in ryokan Yet despite years of experience nakai remain socially and economically vulnerable Through this intimate and inventive ethnography of a year in a ryokan McMorran highlights the importance of both the generational work of ryokan owners and the daily work of their employees while emphasizing the gulf between them With its focus on small family owned businesses and a mobile vulnerable workforce Ryokan makes an invaluable contribution to scholarship on the Japanese workplace It also will interest students and scholars in geography mobility studies and women s studies and anyone who has ever stayed at a ryokan and is curious about the work that takes place behind the scenes
