Screening The Past

Dr. Daniel Schultz

Screening The Past:

Screening the Past Pam Cook, 2004-08-02 From Mildred Pierce and Brief Encounter to Raging Bull and In the Mood for Love this lively and accessible collection explores film culture's obsession with the past offering searching and provocative analyses of a wide range of titles Screening the Past engages with current debates about the role of cinema in mediating history through memory and nostalgia suggesting that many films use strategies of memory to produce diverse forms of knowledge which challenge established ideas of history and the traditional role of historians Classic essays sit side by side with new research contextualized by introductions which bring them up to date and provide suggestions for further reading as the work of contemporary directors such as Martin Scorsese Kathryn Bigelow Todd Haynes and Wong Kar wai is used to examine the different ways they deploy creative processes of memory Pam Cook also investigates the recent history of film studies reviewing the developments that have culminated in the exciting if daunting present moment The result is a rich and stimulating volume that will appeal to anyone with an interest in cinema memory and identity

Screening the Past Tony Barta, 1998-08-20 Film and television have been accepted as having a pervasive influence on how people understand the world An important aspect of this is the relationship of history and film The different views of the past created by film television and video are only now attracting closer attention from historians cultural critics and filmmakers This volume seeks to advance the critical exploration scholars have recently begun Barta begins by addressing the various ways the past is screened for our understanding and relates the art of film to other media The essays that follow deal primarily with the changing perspectives of political and social developments and changing concepts of ideology gender or culture in films and television programs made for historically shaped reasons Chapters by filmmakers explore issues of context and intent in their own projects Scholars and general readers interested in film and cultural studies will find this an important volume

France on Film Lucy Mazdon, 2001 This collection of new essays is a comprehensive introduction to the concerns and styles which characterise contemporary popular French film

Reframing the Past Mia Treacey, 2016-02-26 Reframing the Past traces what historians have written about film and television from 1898 until the early 2000s Mia Treacey argues that historical engagement with film and television should be reconceptualised as Screened History an interdisciplinary international field of research to incorporate and replace what has been known as History and Film It draws from the fields of Film Television and Cultural Studies to critically analyse key works and connect past scholarship with contemporary research Reconsidered as Screened History the works of Pierre Sorlin Marc Ferro John O Connor Robert Rosenstone and Robert Toplin are explored alongside lesser known but equally important contributions This book identifies a number of common themes and ideas that have been explored by historians for decades the use of history on film and television as a way to teach the past the challenge of filmic and televisual history to more traditional historiography and an ongoing battle to find an appropriate historical way to engage with Film Studies and Theory Screened History offers an approach to exploring

History Film and Television that allows room for future developments while connecting them to a rich and diverse body of past scholarship Combining a narrative of historical research on film and television over the past century with a reconceptualisation of the field as Screened History Reframing the Past is essential reading both for established scholars of History and Film Film History and other related disciplines and to students new to the field

Screening the Fleet

Jonathan Rayner,2025-02-04 In Screening the Fleet Prof Jonathan Rayner explores the representation of the modern Royal Navy on British television over a fifty year period from 1973 to 2023 Contextualising his subject with significant aspects of earlier naval representation in recruiting documentary and public information films from the 1940s to the 1960s Rayner then brings his focus forward to 1973 2023 The 1970s were a significant decade for naval representation on television and saw the broadcast of two definitive series the BBC s drama series Warship and the acclaimed documentary series Sailor These landmark series set the benchmark for naval representation in both realist and in fictional portrayals They also set precedents for audience perceptions and these have affected the production and the reception of the series on the Royal Navy that have followed Rayner s work investigates how advances in technology allow programme makers to use new techniques in the spheres of naval drama and documentary More recent series also need to balance the required conventions for any portrayal of the navy on television with the revelatory or iconoclastic approaches now expected by modern audiences In focussing on the changing portrayal of the Royal Navy on television however Rayner also surfaces how the Navy itself has evolved in the post World War II world The series analysed in Screening the Fleet also evidence the changing nature and increasing diversity of the naval community as a reflection of changing notions of Britishness Offering the first study of its type this volume highlights evolving and emerging trends in factual and fact based television programmes through their portrayal of a highly popular patriotic and persistent subject over a fifty year period It debates developments in television and documentary approaches using the representation of the Royal Navy and its changing position in perceptions of British identity

The Kubrick Legacy

Mick Broderick,2019-02-21 The six chapters

assembled in The Kubrick Legacy showcase important trends in the evolution of filmmaker Stanley Kubrick's artistic legacy. In the 20 years since his death an enormous range of information and scholarship has surfaced in part from the Kubrick estate's public preservation, archiving, exhibition and promulgation of the auteur's staggering collection of research materials and film artefacts. These essays from international scholars chart incarnations of the official Kubrick exhibition of extensive artifacts touring the globe for the past decade, the filmmaker's lasting impact on established authors with whom he collaborated, the profound influence of Kubrick's use of existing music in film scores, the exponential rise of conspiracy theories and misinterpretation of his work since his death, the repeated imitation of and homage to his oeuvre across decades of international television advertising and the re-discovery of Kubrick on screen in both documentary form and dramatic characterization. The Kubrick Legacy provides a tantalizing critical snapshot of the enduring impact and influence of one of the twentieth century's most enigmatic and consummate screen artists.

Cinephilia and History, or The Wind in the Trees Christian Keathley, 2005-11-24 Cinephilia and History or The Wind in the Trees is in part a history of cinephilia in part an attempt to recapture the spirit of cinephilia for the discipline of film studies and in part an experiment in cinephilic writing. Cinephiles have regularly fetishized contingent marginal details in the motion picture image: the gesture of a hand, the wind in the trees. Christian Keathley demonstrates that the spectatorial tendency that produces such cinematic encounters—a viewing practice marked by a drift in visual attention away from the primary visual elements on display—in fact has clear links to the origins of film as defined by André Bazin, Roland Barthes and others. Keathley explores the implications of this ontology and proposes the cinephiliac anecdote as a new type of criticism: a method of historical writing that both imitates and extends the experience of these fugitive moments.

Teenage Audiences and British Period Drama Shelley Anne Galpin, 2024-07-25 This book provides an engaging insight into the responses of teenage audiences to British period drama, presenting original data collected from young people across England. Situated in relation to debates regarding the heritage film and young people's consumption of the media, Teenage Audiences and British Period Drama challenges the often homogenous characterisation of teenagers by demonstrating the range of responses this genre inspires in young viewers. Arguing for the period drama's underestimated relevance to younger audiences, the book details the varied ways that young people use film and television drama to make sense of the world and their place in it and highlights the under-researched significance of collective viewing in influencing viewer response. Analysis demonstrates the key role that values play in influencing judgements amongst youth audiences, the importance of perceived historical accuracy and the potential for screen texts to inspire a deeper relationship with the past.

Making History Peter Lambert, Philipp Schofield, 2004-08-02 Making History offers a fresh perspective on the study of the past.
