Successful Aging Martin Bloom, Waldo C. Klein, 2013-12-01 There is a near universal folk saying that everyone wishes to live a good long life but no one wishes for old age More contemporarily the rock and roll band Little Feat sang You know that you're over the hill when your mind's making promises your body can't fill This book is about the good long life It is a book about primary prevention strategies in the aging process it is not about preventing that process It is not about being old Instead it is about the things that individuals and the helping professionals who provide them with counsel and assistance can do to prevent the preventable problems of advancing age and to better manage those changes in functioning that cannot be prevented In short it is about extending all our capacities to the fullest so that we can better keep all those promises that we make to ourselves and others Aging is a life long process We focus here on the changes that are taking place in our selves and in our society as we age In particular we focus on what we can do to affect these changes by the choices we make and how we live This book offers primary prevention strategies for mature and older adults with the recognition that mature adulthood starts as soon as we are old enough to truly appreciate our active role in our own aging processes

Economic Security and Intergenerational Justice Theodore R. Marmor, Timothy M. Smeeding, Vernon L. Greene, 1994

The Elderly Martin Lyon Levine, 2017-05-15 Aging is a public health priority that is becoming increasingly important in both developed and less developed nations with individual health care providers and law makers each facing difficult ethical and policy dilemmas The complex issues physicians deal with include informed consent and patient decision making capacity use of advance care planning and decision making by family and medical staff and withdrawing and withholding life sustaining interventions Broader questions include has aging been over medicalized Is it ethical for older patients to receive less medical care than younger ones through unspoken practice or formal rationing Is there inevitable conflict between the generations over scarce medical resources How should physician patient and family confront end of life decisions How have different nations responded to increasing numbers of the elderly Have social values changed as to family responsibility and individual autonomy This volume brings together the most significant published essays in the field

Aging and Health Care Marcia G. Ory, Kathleen Bond, 2024-05-10 Of all the problems associated with a rapidly growing aging population health care demands top priority Research on health care for older people requires an understanding of the basic principles of aging and its related social processes while popular assumptions on the subject are often ill informed and are based more on misconceptions about aging than on scientific knowledge Originally published in

1989 Aging and Health Care focuses on the most urgent health care problems of older people at the time and explores possible solutions Drawing on up to date social and behavioral research it provides a sound basis on which to build practices and policies on aging and health care The contributors examine the complex relationships among aging persons their health care needs and the current health care and support systems Individual chapters contribute in particular to our understanding of the interactions of the health care system with individual aging processes and the interdependence between the informal and formal care systems With its emphasis on the interrelationships of health care with the biological psychological and social changes that people experience as they grow older Aging and Health Care will still be of historical interest to those studying in social science aging and public health Aging: Culture, Health, and Social Change David N. Weisstub, David C. Thomasma, S. Gauthier, G.F. Tomossy, 2001-11-30 This is the first of three volumes on Aging conceived for the International Library of Ethics Law and the New Medicine Leading scholars from a range of disciplines contest some of the predominant paradigms on aging and critically assess modern trends in social health policy Services to the Aging and Aged Paul K. Kim, 2021-03-04 This series attempts to address the topic of aging from a wide variety of perspectives and to make available some of the best gerontological thought and writings to researchers professional practitioners and students in the field of aging as well as in other related areas This volume is an invaluable resource for those persons seeking a broad comprehensive coverage of current public policies and service programs for the elderly Besides dealing with present gerontological services it also explores the emerging challenges that these services must face in the future One of the outstanding features of the book is that its contributors include some of the most prominent authorities in the field of gerontology This is an exceptionally important and timely volume and is a much needed addition to the literature on aging

Who Lives, Who Dies, Who Decides? Sheldon Ekland-Olson, 2017-10-20 Who Lives Who Dies Who Decides looks at several of the most contentious issues in many societies The book asks whose rights are protected How do these rights and protections change over time and who makes those decisions This book explores the fundamentally sociological processes which underlie the quest for morality and justice in human societies The author sheds light on the social movements and social processes at the root of these seemingly personal moral questions The third edition contains a new chapter on torture entitled Taking Life and Inflicting Suffering Aging Well May Wykle, Sarah Gueldner, 2011 Aging Well Gerontological Education for Nurses and Other Health Professionals brings a fresh outlook to gerontological education and promotes the experience of aging as a positive circumstance and elders as a treasure of society Discussion centers on the application of research findings to encourage elders to rise above and beyond disability to help them retain their identity of personhood and integrate into society in general and their immediate community in particular Contributors include individuals from the academic gerontological community and clinicians as well as experts from related fields such as social policy and community planning This comprehensive text contains vital information necessary to caring for elders including topics such as disease and disabilities associated with aging to illuminate underlying philosophical tenants and social issues Each chapter provides a summary of the key points with suggestions on how to apply them on a daily basis
