David Sabeau, 2023-10-24 The origins of the incest taboo have puzzled many of the most influential minds of the West from Plutarch to St Augustine St Thomas Aquinas Martin Luther David Hume Lewis Henry Morgan Sigmund Freud Emile Durkheim Edward Westermarck and Claude Lévi Strauss This book puts the discussion of incest on a new foundation It is the first attempt to thoroughly examine the rich literature from philosophical theological and legal treatises to psychological and biological genetic studies to a wide variety of popular cultural media over a long period of time The book offers a detailed examination of discursive and figurative representations of incest during five selected periods from 1600 to the present The incest discussion for each period is complemented with a presentation of dominant kinship structures and changes without arguing for causal relations Part I deals with the legacy of ecclesiastical marriage prohibitions of the Middle Ages Historians dealing with the Reformation have wondered about the political and social implications of theological debates about the incest rules the Enlightenment opted for sociological considerations of the household and a new anthropology based on the passions Baroque discourse focused upon sexual relations among kin by marriage while Enlightenment and Romantic discussions worried the intimacy of siblings The first section of Part II deals with the six decades around 1900 during which European and American cultures obsessed about the sexuality of women Almost everyone concurred in the idea that mother made the family what it was that she configured the household kept the lines of kinship vibrant and stood at the threshold as stern gatekeeper and many thought that she managed these tasks through her sexuality and an eroticized relationship with sons Another story line taken up in the section Intermezzo this one about the physical and mental consequences of inbreeding appeared after 1850 To what extent do close kin marriages pose risks for progeny At its center lay the incest problematic now restated Is avoidance of kin genetically programmed Do all cultures know about risks of consanguinity As for the twenty first century evolutionary and genetic assumptions are challenged by a living world population containing roughly one billion offspring of cousin marriages Part III deals with one of the perhaps most remarkable reconfigurations of Western kinship in the aftermath of World War I The shift from an endogamous to an exogamous alliance system centered on the nuclear family An historical anomaly this family form began to dissolve almost as soon as it came together and in the process shifted the focus of incest concerns to a new pairing father and daughter By the 1970s when the father daughter problematic swept all other considerations of incest aside that relationship had come to be modeled for the most part around power and its abusive potential As for incest its representations in the last three decades of the twentieth century no longer focused on biologically damaged progeny but rather on power abuses in the nuclear family sexual abuse By the mid 1990s

Western culture at least partly redirected its gaze away from father and daughter towards siblings especially towards brothers and sisters and the sexual boundaries and erotics of their relationships Correspondingly siblings became a model organism for psychotherapy evolutionary biology and the science of genetics

Playing the Martyr Christopher Semk, 2017-01-06 Playing the Martyr is a book about the interplay between theater and religion in early modern France Challenging the standard narrative of modernity as a process of increased secularization Christopher Semk demonstrates the centrality of religious thought and practices to the development of neoclassical poetics Engaging with a broad corpus of religious plays poetic treatises devotional literature and contemporary theory Semk shows that religion was a vital interlocutor in early modern discussions concerning the definition of verisimilitude the nature and purpose of spectacle the mechanics of acting and the position of the spectator Well researched and persuasively argued Playing the Martyr makes the case for a more complicated approach to the relationship between religion and literature namely one that does not treat religion as a theme deployed within literary works but as an active player in literary invention Indeed it makes the case for a serious reconsideration of the role that religion plays in the development of modern secular literary forms

Queer Velocities Jennifer Eun-Jung Row, 2022-04-15 Queer Velocities Time Sex and Biopower on the Early Modern Stage explores how seventeenth century French theater represents queer desire In this book the first queer theoretical treatment of canonical French theater Jennifer Eun Jung Row proposes that these velocities moments of unseemly haste or strategic delay sparked new kinds of attachments

intimacies and erotics Rather than rely on fixed identities or analog categories we might turn to these affectively saturated moments of temporal sensation to analyze queerness in the premodern world The twin innovations of precise portable timepieces and the development of the theater as a state institution together ignited new types of embodiments orderly and disorderly pleasures and normative and wayward rhythms of life Row leverages a painstakingly formalist and rhetorical analysis of tragedies by Jean Racine and Pierre Corneille to show how the staging of delay or haste can critically interrupt the normative temporalities of marriage motherhood mourning or sovereignty the quotidian rhythms and paradigms so necessary for the biopolitical management of life Row s approach builds on the queer turn to temporality and Elizabeth Freeman s notion of the chronobiopolitical to wager that queerness can also be fostered by the sensations of disruptive speed and slowness Ultimately Row suggests that the theater not only contributed to the glitter of Louis XIV s absolutist spectacle but also ignited new forms of knowing and feeling time as well as new modes of loving living and being together
