Rangitikei The Day Of Striding Out:

Rangitikei, the Day of Striding Out S. G. Laurenson, 1979 Endurance and the First World War David Monger, Katie Pickles, 2014-10-02 Endurance was an inherent part of the First World War The chapters in this collection explore the concept in New Zealand and Australia Researchers from a range of backgrounds and disciplines address what it meant for New Zealanders and Australians to endure the First World War and how the war endured through the Twentieth Century Soldiers and civilians alike endured hardship discomfort fears and anxieties during the war Officials and organisations faced unprecedented demands on their time and resources while Maori Australian Aborigines Anglo Indian New Zealanders and children sought their own ways to contribute and be acknowledged Family members in Australia and New Zealand endured uncertainty about their loved ones fates on distant shores Once the war ended different forms of endurance emerged as responses memories myths and memorials quickly took shape and influenced the ways in which New Zealanders and Australians understood the conflict The collection is divided into the themes of Institutional Endurance Home Front Endurance Battlefield Endurance Race and Endurance and Memorials New Zealand Brad Patterson, Kathryn Patterson, 1998 For many years New Zealand was stereotyped as a sleepy hollow of the South Pacific but more recently it has had an influence in international affairs which belies its size Noted more for its conservatism and stability its green fields and sheep than for its innovation and radicalism this most geographically isolated of English speaking countries took pride in its role as a provider of agricultural produce for Europe Parliamentary Debates New Zealand. Parliament, 1984

Ngamatea Hazel Riseborough, 2006 Ngamatea is a name which evokes visions of the high country of the central North Island of New Zealand Bounded by the Rangitikei and Ngaruroro rivers the sheep station is high remote and often snow covered in winter Ngamatea recounts the history of the land from Maori occupation through the early leasehold years to the era of development from tussock and scrub to highly productive grassland Above all it is the story of the families who worked the land and of musterers and packhorse teams drovers and dogs cooks and shearers truck and tractor drivers poachers and cops who became part of the mystique of the place Parliamentary Debates (Hansard) New Zealand. Parliament. House of Representatives, 1984 New Zealand National Bibliography , 1979 Library of Congress Catalogs Library of Congress, 1980 New Zealand Books in Print , 1980 Subject Catalog Library of Congress, 1980 National Union Catalog , Includes entries for maps and atlases List of New Zealand Books in Print , 1981 National Union Catalog , 1980 , 1981 I Shall Not Die James Belich, 2010 Straddling the Maori and European worlds of the 1860s Titokowaru was one of New Zealand s greatest leaders A brilliant strategist he used every device to save the Taranaki people from European invasion When peaceful negotiation failed he embarked on a stunning military campaign against government forces His victories were many before the battle he lost Although he was forgotten by the Pakeha as a child forgets a nightmare his vision was one that would endure Titokowaru was born into the Ngati Ruanuitribe of South Taranaki in 1823

Trained as a leader by his people he was converted to Christianity in 1843 taking the name Joseph Orton For nearly 20 years a pacifist and Methodist teacher he eventually became disillusioned with Christianity and joined the bitter fighting of the period protesting against continual land loss and the erosion of his people s rights Titokowaru returned to pacifism under the leadership of Te Ua Haumene whose mantle he inherited on the death of the Pai Marire prophet Through 1866 Titokowa rulead a hikoi of peace trying to heal the wounds of war in South Taranaki The mission failing Titokowaru s war broke out on 9 June 1868 A brilliant strategist Titokowaru nearly succeeded in repelling the colonial forces At the last moment however his supporters failed him in a mystery that has never been solved As James Belich suggests it was perhaps the old traditions of his people that undermined Titokowaru s feats of leadership in wars that were to shape the country s history For he was truly a man of two worlds negotiating both with an extraordinary dexterity
