Schiffman,2011-11-01 How we learned to distinguish past from present and see the world historically Outstanding Academic Title Choice How did people learn to distinguish between past and present How did they come to see the past as existing in its own distinctive context In The Birth of the Past Zachary Sayre Schiffman explores these questions in his sweeping survey of historical thinking in the Western world Today we automatically distinguish between past and present labeling things that appear out of place as anachronisms Schiffman shows how this tendency did not always exist and how the past as such was born of a perceived difference between past and present Schiffman takes readers on a grand tour of historical thinking from antiquity to modernity He shows how ancient historians could not distinguish between past and present because they conceived of multiple pasts Christian theologians coalesced these multiple pasts into a single temporal space where past merged with present and future Renaissance humanists began to disentangle these temporal states in their desire to resurrect classical culture creating a living past French enlighteners killed off this living past when they engendered a form of social scientific thinking that measured the relations between historical entities thus sustaining the distance between past and present and relegating each culture to its own distinctive context Featuring a foreword by the eminent historian Anthony Grafton this fascinating book draws upon a diverse range of sources ancient histories medieval theology Renaissance art literature legal thought and early modern mathematics and social science to uncover the meaning of the past and its relationship to the present      Planning Research in Hospitality and Tourism Levent

Interpersonal Relations Prof. Dr. Bilal Semih Bozdemir, To understand the influence of industrialization on interpersonal relations it is crucial to analyze the structural shifts that characterized this period The rise of factories and mass production methods meant that large numbers of workers were concentrated in urban centers leading to the emergence of a new social order The factory system created environments where individuals from diverse backgrounds interacted on a daily basis fostering new forms of social relationships and networks However this proximity did not necessarily translate into solidarity or community Indeed the rapid urbanization often bred isolation and alienation as individuals were uprooted from their traditional communities and support systems leading to feelings of disconnection in the bustling city life Moreover the hierarchical structures of industrial workplaces altered the dynamics of interpersonal relations In contrast to the more egalitarian social structures prevalent in agrarian societies the industrial era saw the rise of a distinctly stratified social order Employers and managers wielded significant power over their employees shaping the nature of interactions within the workplace as well as in the broader community The relationship between labor and management became characterized by conflict negotiation and sometimes antagonism particularly as workers began to organize for better conditions and rights The labor movement and the establishment of trade unions not only transformed the nature of work but also redefined interpersonal relations as collective action provided a platform for workers to unite and interact in new ways fostering solidarity among individuals who had previously been isolated in their struggles

Reading Relations Bernard Sharratt, 1982

Reimagining Rapport Zane Goebel, 2021-01-18 To do ethnography a researcher must have rapport with research subjects But what is rapport Ethnography and ethnographic methods have increasingly become a feature of social inquiry in general and sociolinguistics in particular and rapport is generally considered a prerequisite for fieldwork And yet

unlike related terms such as communication and phatic communion this concept has remained largely unexamined

Reimagining Rapport turns a critical eye to the use of the term rapport across disciplines The collection analyzes the very idea of rapport both exploring how it has been shaped by historical forces and actors within sociocultural anthropology and questioning its usefulness Rather than viewing the term as simply denoting a type of positive social relationship that needs to be formed between researcher and consultant before research can begin this book invites us to reimagine rapport theoretically methodologically and meta methodologically Zane Goebel and other leading sociolinguists challenge readers to think about how rapport has been constructed within these disciplines and ultimately to see rapport as an emergent co constructed social relationship that is actively built during situated multimodal encounters The contributors collectively examine the role of ideology and mediation in the construction of rapport and argue that reconceptualizing research subject relationships is essential for establishing more sophisticated ways of understanding interpreting and representing research context A valuable resource for scholars and students of sociolinguistics and linguistic anthropology as well as for others engaged in ethnographic fieldwork

Reimagining Rapport is the first collection to provide an in depth investigation of this critically important but previously unexamined concept

Theory and the Disappearing Future Tom Cohen, Claire Colebrook, J. Hillis Miller, with a manuscript by Paul de Man, 2011-11-10 Paul de Man is often associated with an era of high theory an era it is argued may now be coming to a close This book written by three leading contemporary scholars includes both a transcript and facsimile print of a previously unpublished text by de Man of his handwritten notes for a lecture on Walter Benjamin Challenging and relevant this volume presents de Man's work as a critical resource for dealing with the most important questions of the twenty first century and argues for the place of theory within it The humanities are flooded with crises of globalism capitalism and terrorism contemporary narratives of financial collapse viral annihilation species extinction environmental disaster and terrorist destruction Cohen Colebrook and Miller draw out the implications of these crises and their narratives and reflecting on this work by de Man explore the limits of political thinking of historical retrieval and the ethics of archives and cultural
