The Old West in Fact and Film Jeremy Agnew, 2012-11-15 For many years movie audiences have carried on a love affair with the American West believing Westerns are escapist entertainment of the best kind harkening back to the days of the frontier This work compares the reality of the Old West to its portrayal in movies taking an historical approach to its consideration of the cowboys Indians gunmen lawmen and others who populated the Old West in real life and on the silver screen Starting with the Westerns of the early 1900s it follows the evolution in look style and content as the films matured from short vignettes of good versus bad into modern plots

A Garland of Bones Jonah Steinberg, 2019-01-01 An intimate portrait of India's child runaways and the sociopolitical forces shaping their lives. This intimate portrait examines the tracks, journeys, and experiences of child runaways in northern India. Jonah Steinberg situates children's decisions to leave home and flee for the city in their larger cultural, social, and historical contexts and considers histories of landlessness and debt servitude in narratives of child dislocation. The resulting work is an original perspective on the sociological trends in postcolonial India and a unique treatment of a population of individuals who live on the margin of society. The City

Jersey William Nelson, 1902 Genealogical Abstracts from the American Weekly Mercury, 1719-1746 Kenneth Scott, 1974

The American Weekly Mercury was the first newspaper published in Pennsylvania and the third in British North America. In the earliest days of publication, what little genealogical material is found in the paper comes chiefly from advertisements for runaway servants or Negro and Indian slaves. In time, however, a steady stream of genealogical data, mainly marriages and deaths, began to appear. Most of the marriage entries pertained to persons of some distinction, such as governors, judges, government officials, clergymen, and eminent merchants, as well as their family members. In the case of death notices, the age of the deceased was noted, sometimes with a brief sketch of his career and with an indication of his place of birth, ancestry, and relatives. Many of the genealogical items were concerned with persons in Delaware, New Jersey, Maryland, South Carolina, and New England, as well as Pennsylvania. The index lists 3,400 names of persons who would otherwise have been relegated to obscurity. Addressing Confidentiality of Records in Searches for Missing Children, 1995 Imperialism at Home Susan Meyer, 2019-06-30. The implicit link between white women and the dark races recurs persistently in nineteenth-century English fiction. Imperialism at Home examines the metaphorical use of race by three nineteenth-century women novelists: Charlotte Brontë, Emily Brontë, and George Eliot. Susan Meyer argues that each of these domestic novelists uses race relations as a metaphor through which to explore the relationships between men and women at home in England. In the fiction of, for example, Anthony Trollope and Charles Dickens, as in nineteenth-century culture more generally, the subtle and not so subtle comparison of white women and people of color is used to suggest their mutual inferiority. The Brontë sisters and George Eliot responded to this comparison, Meyer contends, transforming it for their own purposes. Through this central metaphor, these women novelists work out a sometimes contentious relationship to established hierarchies of race and gender. Their feminist impulses, in combination with their use of race as a metaphor, Meyer argues, produce at times a surprising if partial critique of empire. Through readings of Jane Eyre, Wuthering Heights, The Mill on the Floss, Daniel Deronda, and Charlotte Brontë's African juvenilia, Meyer traces the aesthetically and ideologically complex workings of the racial metaphor. Her analysis is supported by careful attention to textual details and thorough grounding in recent scholarship on the idea of race and on literature and imperialism. Dateline Bhopal Anees Chishti, 1986 Reading
