Science in Print Rima D. Apple, Gregory J. Downey, Stephen L. Vaughn, 2012-09-25 Ever since the threads of seventeenth century natural philosophy began to coalesce into an understanding of the natural world printed artifacts such as laboratory notebooks research journals college textbooks and popular paperbacks have been instrumental to the development of what we think of today as science But just as the history of science involves more than recording discoveries so too does the study of print culture extend beyond the mere cataloguing of books In both disciplines researchers attempt to comprehend how social structures of power reputation and meaning permeate both the written record and the intellectual scaffolding through which scientific debate takes place Science in Print brings together scholars from the fields of print culture environmental history science and technology studies medical history and library and information studies This ambitious volume paints a rich picture of those tools and techniques of printing publishing and reading that shaped the ideas and practices that grew into modern science from the days of the Royal Society of London in the late 1600s to the beginning of the modern U S environmental movement in the early 1960s

African and African American Images in Newbery Award Winning Titles Binnie Tate Wilkin, 2009-08-03 Since 1922 the Newbery Medal of Honor has been awarded to distinguished works of literature for children Although African and African American characters appeared in children s books well before the establishment of the Newbery award such depictions were limited with characters often only appearing as slaves or servants. However, over the last several decades, there has been much progress, and Black characters have played a much more integral role in many highly regarded novels. In African and African American Images in Newbery Award Winning Titles, Binnie Tate Wilkin provides a historical and contextual examination of books with such depictions that have been acknowledged by the nation's most prestigious award for children's literature. Wilkin explores the depictions of African and African American characters in these novels and illuminates the progressive quality of such representations. Wilkin looks closely at such elements as aesthetic descriptions, subservient characterizations, the relationships between characters, and specific language usage to investigate how these images have progressed toward increasingly positive depictions. She also notes when applicable the significance of the lack of any African or African American images. This book is an essential resource for those interested in African American studies, children's literature, and the relationship between the two.

Children's Book Award Handbook Diana F. Marks, 2006-03-30

Diana Marks looks at children's and young adult book awards in depth. The history, award criteria, and a biography of the person behind each of the well-known awards is included. Also of interest are lists of the winners in each category, teaching and exploration activities, reproducible teaching aides, and a timeline of events leading up to the establishment of the award. Information about well-known awards is accompanied by information on the lesser-known Pura Belpré, Jane Addams, etc. Information is formatted in quick, easy-to-read tables and charts suitable for classroom duplication. Although some of this information is available online, this is a one-stop handbook that contains lesser-known awards and offers activities for enriching the study of each award, whether well-known or not. Frontiers in American

Children's Literature Dorothy Clark, Linda Salem, 2016-02-29

Frontiers in American Children's Literature is a groundbreaking work by both established and emerging scholars in the fields of children's literature, criticism, history, and education. It offers 18 essays which explore and critically examine the expanding canon of American children's books against the backdrop of a social history comprised of a deep layering of trauma and struggle, redefining what equality and freedom mean. The book charts new ground in how children's literature is telling stories of historical trauma, the racial violence of American slavery, the Mexican Repatriation Act, and the oppression and violence against African Americans in light of such murders as in the AME Mother Emanuel Church and the shooting of Michael Brown. This new frontier explores how truth-telling about racism, oppression, and genocide communicates with the young about violence and freedom in literature, transforming harsh truths into a moral vision. Frontiers in American Children's Literature will be an instant classic for fans of children's and adolescent literature, American literature, cultural studies, and students of literature in general, as well as teachers and prospective teachers. Those interested in art history, graphic novels, picture book art, African American, and American Indian literature, the digital humanities, and new media will also find this volume compelling. Authors and artists covered in these essays include Laurie R. King, M. T. Anderson, Paolo Bacigalupi, Louise Erdrich, Eric Gansworth, Edward Gorey Russell Hoban Ellen Hopkins Patricia Polacco Ann Rinaldi Peter S. S. Lynd Ward and Naomi Wolf among others. Essayists examine their subjects' most provocative works on the topics of realistic depictions of slavery, oppression, and trauma, and the triumph of truth in storytelling over these experiences. From The Astonishing Life of Octavian Nothing, Tenth Son to The Birchbark House, from the graphic novel to picture books and the digital humanities in teaching and reading, there is something for everyone in this collection. Contributors include leaders in the fields of literature and education such as the award-winning Katherine Capshaw and Anastasia Ulanowicz. Margaret Noodin, poet and leader in American Indian scholarship and education, leads the essays on American Indian children's literature, while Steven Herb, Director of the Pennsylvania Center for the Book and an affiliate of the Center for the Book in the Library of Congress, offers an insider's view of Caldecott Medal awardee Lynn Ward.

Children's Book Prizes Ruth Allen, 2019-01-22

First published in 1998, this book is the first comprehensive survey of the awards made to children's books in the English-speaking world. The volume covers nearly forty different prizes, including well-known and established ones such as the Newbery Award, prizes instigated by the commercial sector such as the Smarties Prize, as well as nationally sponsored awards and prizes for illustrators. Detailed lists are provided of the winning titles and, where appropriate, the runners-up in each year that the award has been given. Ruth Allen also presents some fascinating and often entertaining insights into the motivations behind awards and how they are viewed by authors, illustrators, publishers, librarians, booksellers, and potential purchasers. The various criteria applied by judges of these awards are also examined, with an assessment of whether they have always achieved the right result. This volume is both a useful guide for adults wishing to buy good books for children and an important tool for those researching the history of the children's book industry.
