

REFORMS IN RURAL DEVELOPMENT AND THEIR INFLUENCE ON AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION OF UZBEKISTAN: EXPERIENCE AND CHALLENGES IN WATER MANAGEMENT

Nowadays science applies agricultural innovations in a wide range all over the world; however, number of water users in innovations is in smaller amounts. This might happen to a number of factors, for example lack of adequate knowledge exchange system, nominal extension services at places, lack of well-defined policies, barriers in 'human' minds change, barriers at policy level. As for Uzbekistan, it could be said that practice of extension of innovations application and its diffusion in agricultural irrigation sector in Uzbekistan does not have much experience, however, before 1991 Uzbekistan was one of the Soviet Unions' republics and as it is known, the Soviet Union had high practice in innovations in different sectors, as well as in agriculture. Although, since independence, Uzbekistan has continued to experience innovations in agricultural sector independently, their diffusion is at a challenging shape. This article captures the policy issue, how Uzbekistan started to develop water management issues in its economic reforms, it describes a case research on application of innovative technique on a farm level and accordingly, it tries to propose the aspects that need to be involved in future reforms to make the current situation be better managed.

Keywords: agriculture, water, extension, innovations, policy

Water is the most distributed natural substance in our planet and the most important and critical resource which is unevenly distributed on the Earth. In the world, where number of inhabitants is expanding enormously the withdrawals from the water resources are exceeding. The surface area is constant but population is increasing. This indicates that from the same land we need to produce more crops. Basically, irrigation proved to contribute considerably to making land more productive, although especially large-scale irrigation often leads to disadvantageous impacts on the environment.

The FAO (2002) predicted that the irrigated area in developing countries needs to be expanded from 202 million ha in 1999 to 242 million ha in 2030 to meet the increasing food demand. The demand for irrigation will in particular increase in arid and semi-arid regions where more than 90% of agriculture depends on irrigation due to predictions on the impact of climate change that will reduce irrigation water availability. As for Uzbekistan, the World Bank (2010) forecasts, that climate change for Uzbekistan from 2005 to 2050 indicates that:

1. the water demand will increase from 59 km³ to 62–63 km³,
2. the supply will decrease from 57 km³ to 52–54 km³,
3. the present water deficit will increase by over 500% from about 2 km³ to 11–13 km³.

Moreover, Toderich et al. (2009) reported that approximately 20 000 ha of irrigated land in Uzbekistan are lost due to salinity and invariably abandoned every year.

Considering that the most applied irrigation technique in Uzbekistan is furrow irrigation, this technique increases the water management problem by applying about double water amount than is the actual need for plants. For example, Mohan et al. (2012) evaluated the performance of furrow irrigation in Fergana valley and the results showed that the application efficiency of the irrigation events in 2009 was 48% with an average runoff loss of 39% from fields. Moreover, the problem is becoming bigger taking into account that irrigation norms between farmers are hardly considered and water price is hardly valued.

The high population growth rate, degradation of agricultural lands and scarcity of fresh water have raised doubt about the future suitability of the dominant agricultural practices for irrigated drylands. In face of the environmental and economic challenges, there is an urgent need to reconsider the existing classical agricultural systems and to adapt agricultural systems that can help to prevent soil quality, soil fertility degradation, water management efficiency and hence increase productivity. In most countries, this issue is being solved by applying innovative techniques, however, innovative techniques are used rather in smaller amounts in comparison to what people are used to, under conventional approach. This might happen to a number of factors e.g. lack of adequate knowledge exchange system, nominal extension services at places (Levidov et al., 2014), lack of well-defined policies (Iglesias and Garrote 2015), barriers in 'human' minds change, barriers at policy level.
