Bollywood Cinema Vijay Mishra, 2013-08-21 India is home to Bollywood the largest film industry in the world Movie theaters are said to be the temples of modern India with Bombay producing nearly 800 films per year that are viewed by roughly 11 million people per day In Bollywood Cinema Vijay Mishra argues that Indian film production and reception is shaped by the desire for national community and a pan Indian popular culture Seeking to understand Bollywood according to its own narrative and aesthetic principles and in relation to a global film industry he views Indian cinema through the dual methodologies of postcolonial studies and film theory Mishra discusses classics such as Mother India 1957 and Devdas 1935 and recent films including Ram Lakhan 1989 and Khalnayak 1993 linking their form and content to broader issues of national identity epic tradition popular culture history and the implications of diaspora Cinema's Original Sin Paul

McEwan, 2022-12-13 For over a century cinephiles and film scholars have had to grapple with an ugly artifact that sits at the beginnings of film history D W Griffith's profoundly racist epic The Birth of a Nation inspired controversy and protest at its 1915 release and was defended as both a true history of Reconstruction although it was based on fiction and a new achievement in cinematic art Paul McEwan examines the long and shifting history of its reception revealing how the film became not just a cinematic landmark but also an influential force in American aesthetics and intellectual life In every decade since 1915 filmmakers museums academics programmers and film fans have had to figure out how to deal with this troublesome object and their choices have profoundly influenced both film culture and the notion that films can be works of art Some critics tried to set aside the film's racism and concentrate on the form while others tried to relegate that racism safely to the past McEwan argues that from the earliest film retrospectives in the 1920s to the rise of remix culture in the present day controversies about this film and its meaning have profoundly shaped our understandings of film race and art

French National Cinema Susan Hayward, 2006-09-07 This examination of France's national cinema takes its primary artefact the feature film and discusses both popular cinema and the avant garde cinema that contests it Susan Hayward argues that writing on French national cinema has tended to focus on either great film makers or on specific movements addressing moments of exception rather than the global picture Her work offers a thorough and much needed historical textualisation of those moments and relocates them in their wider political and cultural context Beginning with an ecohistory of the French film industry she then traces the various movements in French cinema and the directors associated with them including the avant garde Poetic Realist New Wave and today's postmodern cinema Her analysis includes amongst other considerations the social and political concerns these cinemas reflect

Torn Sprockets Gerald Pratley, 1987 The history of Canadian filmmaking is a fascinating topic and in this book the author takes the reader through the early years of the twentieth century when Hollywood monopolized the industry Edison's Kinetoscope enthralled the public and motion picture exhibitions swept across Canada

She Animates Lora Mjolsness, Michele Leigh, 2021-02-02 She Animates examines the work of twelve female animation directors in the Soviet Union and Russia who have long been overlooked by film scholars and historians Our approach examines these directors within history culture and industrial practice in animation In addition to making a case for including these women and their work in the annals of film and animation history this volume also makes an argument for why their work should be considered part of the tradition of women's cinema We offer textual analysis that focuses on the changing attitudes towards both the woman question and feminism by examining the films in light of the emergence and evolution of a Soviet female subjectivity that still informs women's cinema in Russia today

Shadow Economies of Cinema Ramon Lobato, 2019-07-25 How do people access movies today What are the most popular and powerful channels for media distribution on a global scale How are film industries changing in the face of media convergence and digitisation To answer questions such as these argues Ramon Lobato we must shift our gaze away from the legal film business and toward cinema's shadow economies All around the world films are bought from roadside stalls local markets and grocery stores they are illegally downloaded and streamed they are watched in makeshift video clubs on street corners and in restaurants shops and bars International film culture in its actually existing forms is a messy affair and it relies to a great extent on black and grey media markets Examining the industrial dynamics of these subterranean film networks across a number of different sites from Los Angeles to Lagos Melbourne to Mexico City this book shows how they constitute a central rather than marginal part of audiovisual culture and commerce Combining film industry analysis with cultural theory Shadow Economies of Cinema opens up a new area of inquiry for cinema studies putting industry research into dialogue with wider debates about economic informality and commodity circulation Written in an accessible style this book offers an original bottom up perspective on the global cinema industry for researchers and students in film studies cultural studies and media and communications increasingly focused on visual media students have learned not only to embrace multimedia presentations in the classroom but to expect them. Such expectations are perhaps more prevalent in a field as dynamic and cross disciplinary as religious studies but the practice nevertheless poses some difficult educational issues. The use of movies in academic coursework has far outpaced the scholarship on teaching religion and film. What does it mean to utilize film in religious studies and what are the best ways to do it? In Teaching Religion and Film an interdisciplinary team of scholars thinks about the theoretical and pedagogical concerns involved with the intersection of film and religion in the classroom. They examine the use of film to teach specific religious traditions, religious theories and perspectives on fundamental human values. Some instructors already teach some version of a film and religion course and many have integrated film as an ancillary to achieving central course goals. This collection of essays helps them understand the field better and draws the sharp distinction between merely watching movies in the classroom and comprehending film in an informed and critical way.
