The International Relations of the Contemporary Middle East Tareq Y. Ismael, Glenn E. Perry, 2013-10-01 The Middle East a few decades ago was seen to be an autonomous subsystem of the global international political system More recently the region has been subordinated to the hegemony of a singular superpower the US bolstered by an alliance with Israel and a network of Arab client states The subordination of the contemporary Middle East has resulted in large part from the disappearance of countervailing forces for example global bipolarity that for a while allowed the Arab world in particular to exercise a modicum of flexibility in shaping its international relations The aspirations of the indigenous population of the Middle East have been stifled by the dynamics of the unequal global power relationships and domestic politics of the countries of the region are regularly subordinated to the prerogatives of international markets and the strategic competition of the great powers Employing the concept of imperialism defined as a pattern of alliances between a center rulers in the Center developed country and a center client regime in the Periphery underdeveloped country as an overall framework to analyse the subordination of the region this book is essential reading for students and scholars of the Middle East International Relations and Politics in general Dialogue with the Mediterranean Gareth Mark Winrow, 2002-05-03 The first examination of the importance of NATO's Mediterranean Initiative for the security and stability of the Euro Mediterranean area this book discusses the challenges risks and possible threats to NATO member states which may stem from the southern and eastern Mediterranean The Emerging Euro-Mediterranean System Dimitris Xenakis, Dimitris N.
