The Folklore of Hertfordshire Doris Jones-Baker, 1977

A Caring County? Steven King, Gillian Gear, 2013-11-01 This comparative study gathers together new research by local historians into aspects of welfare in Hertfordshire spanning four centuries and focusing on towns and villages across the county including Ashwell Cheshunt Hertford Pilton and Royston amongst many others In so doing it makes a valuable contribution to the current debate about the spatial and chronological variation in the character of welfare regimes within single counties let alone more widely As well as viewing poor relief geographically and chronologically the book also considers the treatment of particular groups such as the aged the mad children and the unemployed and shows how within the constraints of the relevant welfare laws each group was dealt with differently giving a more nuanced picture than has perhaps been the case before The overarching question that the book attempts to answer is how effectively Hertfordshire cared for those in need With chapters on madhouses workhouses certified industrial schools the Foundling Hospital pensions and medical care the book covers a very broad range of topics through which a complex picture emerges While some officials seem to have been driven by a relatively narrow sense of their obligations to the poor and vulnerable others appear to have tailored welfare packages to their precise needs Naturally self interest played a part if the weakest citizens were well managed vagrancy might be lessened the spread of disease contained and control maintained over the cost of looking after the poor and sick It seems that Hertfordshire was relatively nimble and sensitive in discovering and treating its people s needs Evidence is beginning to emerge in other words that Hertfordshire was in essence a caring county
