Mahan on Naval Warfare A. T. Mahan,2015-07-13 Excerpt from Mahan on Naval Warfare Selections From the Writing of Rear Admiral Alfred T Mahan In his volume of reminiscences From Sail to Steam Rear Admiral Mahan gives us his father s opinion and his own later judgment regarding his choice of the navy as a life work My father told me he thought me less fit for a military than for a civil profession having watched me carefully I think myself now that he was right for though I have no cause to complain of unsuccess I believe I should have done better elsewhere The father Dennis Hart Mahan was a graduate of West Point in later life a distinguished professor of engineering at the Military Academy and thus well qualified to weigh his son s character and the requirements of a military career The verdict of both father and son moreover may appear borne out by the fact that while the name of Mahan is more widely known today than that of any other American naval officer his fame rests not on his achievements as a ship or fleet commander but as a great naval historian and student of naval warfare Whatever the apparent wisdom of the choice at the time it was in the event fortunate both for himself and for the naval profession About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Architects of Continental Seapower Jeremy Stocker, 2020-10-01 This book describes and analyses two iconic figures in twentieth century naval history the German Admiral Alfred von Tirpitz and the Russian Admiral Sergei Gorshkov It examines the men what they thought and wrote about seapower the fleets they created and the strategic consequences of what they did More broadly it draws on the respective histories of the post 1897 Imperial German Navy and the post 1956 Soviet Navy to examine the continental bid for large scale seapower The work argues that both individuals built navies that did not and could not fulfil the objectives for which they were created Drawing on the legacies of both men the book also develops some wider ideas about the creation of large navies by continental states with cautionary lessons for today s emerging powers India and China Both admirals have received book length biographies but this is the first attempt at a comparative study and the first to draw broader strategic lessons from their respective attempts as continental navalists to challenge maritime states This book will be of much interest to students of naval history strategic studies and International Relations
