Rugby and Daventry Streetplan Hugh Lane Gallery,1998-12-01 Rugby and Daventry Ordnance Survey Staff,2000-12-01 Provincial Readers in Eighteenth-Century England Jan Fergus,2007-01-25 Many scholars have written about eighteenth century English novels but no one really knows who read them This study provides historical data on the provincial reading publics for various forms of fiction novels plays chapbooks children s books and magazines Archival records of Midland booksellers based in five market towns and selling printed matter to over thirty three hundred customers between 1744 and 1807 form the basis for new information about who actually bought and borrowed different kinds of fiction in eighteenth century provincial England This book thus offers the first solid demographic information about actual readership in eighteenth century provincial England not only about the class profession age and sex of readers but also about the market of available fiction from which they made their choices and some speculation about why they made the choices they did Contrary to received ideas men in the provinces were the principal customers for eighteenth century novels including those written by women Provincial customers preferred to buy rather than borrow fiction and women preferred plays and novels written by women women s works would have done better had women been the principal consumers That is demand for fiction written by both men and women was about equal for the first five years but afterward the demand for women s works declined Both men and women preferred novels with identifiable authors to anonymous ones however and both boys and men were able to cross gender lines in their reading Goody Two Shoes was one of the more popular children s books among Rugby schoolboys and men read the Lady s Magazine These and other findings will alter the way scholars look at the fiction of the period the questions asked and the histories told of it The World's First Railway System Mark Casson,2009-09-10 The British railway network was a monument to Victorian private enterprise Its masterpieces of civil engineering were emulated around the world But its performance was controversial praised for promoting a high density of lines it was also criticised for wasteful duplication of routes This is the first history of the British railway system written from a modern economic perspective It uses counterfactual analysis to construct an alternative network to represent the most efficient alternative rail network that could have been constructed given what was known at the time the first time this has been done It reveals how weaknesses in regulation and defects in government policy resulted in enormous inefficiency in the Victorian system that Britain lives with today British railway companies developed into powerful regional monopolies which then contested each other s territories When denied access to existing lines in rival territories they built duplicate lines instead Plans for an integrated national system sponsored by William Gladstone were blocked by Members of Parliament because of a perceived conflict with the local interests they represented Each town wanted more railways than its neighbours and so too many lines were built The costs of these surplus lines led ultimately to higher fares and freight charges which impaired the performance of the economy The book will be the definitive source of reference for those interested in the economic history of the British railway system It makes use of a major new historical source deposited railway plans integrates transport and local history through its regional analysis of the railway system and provides a comprehensive classified bibliography Post office directory of Berkshire, Northamptonshire, Oxfordshire, with Bedfordshire, Buckinghamshire, and Huntingdonshire [afterw.] The Post office directory of Northamptonshire, Huntingdonshire, Bedfordshire, Buckinghamshire, Berkshire, and Oxfordshire Kelly's directories, ltd,1869 The History of the Village of Willoughby, in the County of Warwick, Etc Thomas DEACON (Topographical Writer.),1828 Census of England & Wales, 1921 ... Great Britain.
