Ruling Passions Sex Race:

Ruling Passions Anton Gill, 1995 Based on eye witness accounts and personal memories of colonials and native people and focusing mainly on India and Africa this is a sexual and racial history of the British Empire a history of mixed marriages and mistresses of brothels and missionaries and of memsahibs and concubines Anton Gill argues that sex and race in the context of the Empire reveal much about the true nature of British imperialist ambitions and that from the first colonial outpost to the mid 20th century sexual attitudes at home influenced the behaviour of the colonials abroad Whether they were taking advantage of greater sexual freedom or trying to prevent any interaction with the local population sex was according to the author a major issue for those who ruled the Empire

Burma, Kipling and Western Music Andrew Selth, 2016-11-03 For decades scholars have been trying to answer the question how was colonial Burma perceived in and by the Western world and how did people in countries like the United Kingdom and United States form their views This book explores how Western perceptions of Burma were influenced by the popular music of the day From the First Anglo Burmese War of 1824 6 until Burma regained its independence in 1948 more than 180 musical works with Burma related themes were written in English speaking countries in addition to the many hymns composed in and about Burma by Christian missionaries Servicemen posted to Burma added to the lexicon with marches and ditties and after 1913 most movies about Burma had their own distinctive scores Taking Rudyard Kipling s 1890 ballad

Mandalay as a critical turning point this book surveys all these works with emphasis on popular songs and show tunes also looking at classical works ballet scores hymns soldiers songs sea shanties and film soundtracks It examines how they influenced Western perceptions of Burma and in turn reflected those views back to Western audiences The book sheds new light not only on the West's historical relationship with Burma and the colonial music scene but also Burma's place in the development of popular music and the rise of the global music industry In doing so it makes an original contribution to the fields of musicology and Asian Studies

Nemesis Adrian G. Marshall, 2015-10-23 The Nemesis was the first of a generation of iron clad steam powered naval vessels that established British dominance in Asian waters in the nineteenth century The world's first iron warship the first vessel with truly watertight compartments and the first iron vessel to round the Cape of Good Hope Nemesis represented a staggering superiority over the oar and sail powered naval forces of Britain's Asian rivals Yet strangely her story has never been told to modern audiences and her origins and actions have until now been shrouded in mystery This lively narrative places her in the historical context of the last years of the East India Company and in the history of steam power and iron ships It tells of her exploits in the First Opium War in pirate suppression and naval actions across Asia from Bombay to Burma to the Yangtze River and beyond relationship between geography and politics Imperialism, Power, and Identity David J. Mattingly, 2013-12-05 Despite what history has taught us about imperialism's destructive effects on colonial societies many classicists continue to emphasize disproportionately the civilizing and assimilative nature of the Roman Empire and to hold a generally favorable view of Rome's impact on its subject peoples Imperialism Power and Identity boldly challenges this view using insights from postcolonial studies of modern empires to offer a more nuanced understanding of Roman imperialism Rejecting outdated notions about Romanization David Mattingly focuses instead on the concept of identity to reveal a Roman society made up of far flung populations whose experience of empire varied enormously He examines the nature of power in Rome and the means by which the Roman state exploited the natural mercantile and human resources within its frontiers Mattingly draws on his own archaeological work in Britain Jordan and North Africa and covers a broad range of topics including sexual relations and violence census taking and taxation mining and pollution land and labor and art and iconography He shows how the lives of those under Rome's dominion were challenged enhanced or destroyed by the empire's power and in doing so he redefines the meaning and significance of Rome in today's debates about globalization power and empire Imperialism Power and Identity advances a new agenda for classical studies one that views Roman rule from the perspective of the ruled and not just the rulers In a new preface Mattingly reflects on some of the reactions prompted by the initial publication of the book

Jinnah, Pakistan and Islamic Identity Akbar Ahmed, 2005-08-12 Every generation needs to reinterpret its great men of the past Akbar Ahmed by revealing Jinnah's human face alongside his heroic achievement both makes this statesman accessible to the current age and renders his greatness even clearer than before Four men shaped the end of British rule in India Nehru Gandhi Mountbatten and Jinnah We know a great deal about the first three but Mohammed Ali Jinnah the founder of Pakistan has mostly either been ignored or in the case of Richard Attenborough's hugely successful film about Gandhi portrayed as a cold megalomaniac bent on the bloody partition of India Akbar Ahmed's major study redresses the balance Drawing on history semiotics and cultural anthropology as well as more conventional biographical techniques Akbar S Ahmad presents a rounded picture of the man and shows his relevance as contemporary Islam debates alternative forms of political leadership in a world dominated at least in the Western media by figures like Colonel Gadaffi and Saddam Hussein Cultural

Gender and Colonial Space Sara Mills,2005 The aim of this book is to interrogate the process whereby spatial relations are constituted as gendered raced and classed within the colonial and imperial context introd Contesting Islam,

Constructing Race and Sexuality Sunera Thobani,2020-12-10 The current political standoffs of the War on Terror illustrate that the interaction within and between the so called Western and Middle Eastern civilizations is constantly in flux A recurring theme however is how Islam and Muslims signify the Enemy in the Western socio cultural imagination and have become the Other against which the West identifies itself In a unique and insightful blend of critical race feminist and post colonial theory Sunera Thobani examines how Islam is foundational to the formation of Western identity at critical points in its history including the Crusades the Reconquista and the colonial period More specifically she explores how masculinity and femininity are formed at such pivotal junctures and what role feminism has played in the wars against radical Islam Exposing these symbiotic relationships Thobani explores how the return of religion is reworking the racial gender and sexual politics by which Western society defines itself and more specifically defines itself against Islam Contesting Islam

Constructing Race and Sexuality unpacks conventional as well as unconventional orthodoxies to open up new spaces in how we think about sexual and racial identity in the West and the crucial role that Islam has had and continues to have in its development Race War! Gerald Horne, 2005-11-01 Japan's lightning march across Asia during World War II was swift and brutal. Nation after nation fell to Japanese soldiers. How were the Japanese able to justify their occupation of so many Asian nations? And how did they find supporters in countries they subdued and exploited? Race War delves into submerged and forgotten history to reveal how European racism and colonialism were deftly exploited by the Japanese to create allies among formerly colonized people of color. Through interviews and original archival research on five continents, Gerald Horne shows how race played a key and hitherto ignored role in each phase of the war. During the conflict, the Japanese turned white racism on its head, portraying the war as a defense against white domination in the Pacific. We learn about the reverse racial hierarchy practiced by the Japanese in internment camps in which whites were placed at the bottom of the totem pole under the supervision of Chinese, Korean, and Indian guards, an embarrassing example of racial payback that was downplayed by the defeated Japanese and the humiliated Europeans and Euro-Americans. Focusing on the microcosmic example of Hong Kong but ranging from colonial India to New Zealand and the shores of the U.S., Gerald Horne radically retells the story of the war. From racist U.S. propaganda to Black Nationalist open support of Imperial Japan, information about the effect of race on U.S. and British policy is revealed for the first time. This revisionist account of the war draws connections between General Tojo, Malaysian freedom fighters, and Elijah Muhammad of the Nation of Islam and shows how white racism encouraged and enabled Japanese imperialism. In sum, Horne demonstrates that the retreat of white supremacy was not only driven by the impact of the Cold War and the energized militancy of Africans and African Americans but by the impact of the Pacific War as well. As a chastened U.S. and U.K. moved vigorously after this conflict to remove the conditions that made Japan's success possible Myths and Millennial Dreams of a New Age in Australian Culture Jackie Huggins, Julie Marcus, 2024-06-17

Race, Ethnicity and Football Daniel Burdsey, 2012-01-25 As the first edited collection dedicated specifically to race, ethnicity, and British football, this book brings together a range of academics comprising both established commentators and up-and-coming voices. Combining theoretical and empirical contributions, the volume addresses a wide variety of topics such as the experiences of Muslims, the recruitment of African players, devolution, and national identities; case studies of minority ethnic clubs, mixed-race players, multiculturalism, and anti-racism; sectarianism, education, and covering the amateur and professional spheres; and focusing on both players and supporters, the book elucidates the linkages between race, ethnicity, gender, and masculinity The Lion and the Tiger Denis Judd, 2004 An authoritative and lively account of the long and controversial history of the British in India, from the foundation of the East India Company in 1600 to Gandhi's innovative leadership of the increasingly militant Indian Nationalist movement, and finally to Lord Mountbatten's swift surgery of partition, leaving behind the Independent states of India and Pakistan. Against this epic backdrop, Judd explores the consequences of British control for both Indians and the British in India. What was the effect on their daily lives and on the lives they were effectively controlling Were the British intent on development or exploitation Were they a civilizing force
