Rural Employment Manpower Problems In China:

Rural Employment & manpower problems in China Curtis Ullerich, 2017-07-28 This title was first published in 1978 The present study is an outgrowth of the author's puzzlement with an obvious paradox Whereas the Chinese have always stressed the importance of their agricultural revolution in human social and political terms the community of Western observers has been increasingly fascinated by its more technological and quantitative achievements While a great deal has been written about these latter aspects Chinese invitations to take a closer look at the former ones have gone largely unheeded particularly in the more economic oriented quarters among China watchers This study tries to fill that gap Rural

Labour Markets, Poverty, and Development

Giorgio Barba Navaretti, Riccardo Faini, Giovanni Zanalda, 1999 As we reach the turn of the millennium the disparity between developed and developing world is of increasing concern Labour Poverty and Development brings together a worldwide mix of contributors from both the academic and practitioner sides of the current debate combining rigorous economic analysis and broader based theorizing to provide a detailed picture of the causes effects and implications of the current situation in the developing world All the contributions stress the vertical relationship between macro trends and micro functionings of markets Part I deals with the interaction between employment and growth and trade policy investigating the positive relationship between growth and employment and the connection between trade liberalization and better working conditions Part II looks at the situation in urban areas the crucial and often hidden role that the informal sector plays in the urban employment market and its connection to the formal labour sector and the collective decision making involved in gender differentials in education Finally Part III investigates the other side of the rural-urban divide with a detailed micro study of labour supply in rural communes in China and an analysis of a common developing world poverty trap the spiralling relationship between destitution and low productivity China without Mao [electronic resource] Immanuel Chung-Yueh Hsü, 1990

Knowledge Production in Mao-Era China Rui Kunze, Marc Andre Matten, 2021-10-15 This book traces and analyzes the transformation of the public discourse of science and technology in Mao era China Based on extensive primary sources such as science dissemination materials and technical handbooks as well as mass media products of the Great Leap Forward and the Cultural Revolution periods this book delineates the emergence of a pragmatic approach to knowledge in society To achieve the goal of fast modernization with limited financial human and material resources the party state accommodated Western and local modern and traditional knowledges in the fields of agricultural mechanization steel production and Chinese veterinary medicine The case studies demonstrate that scientific knowledge production in the Mao era included various social groups and was entangled with political and cultural issues This reveals and explains the continuity of scientific thinking across the historical divides of 1949 and 1978 which has hitherto been underestimated

China's Economic Development Chu-yuan Cheng, 2019-03-13 How has the government of the PRC transformed

traditional economic institutions into a socialist central planning system What has been the impact of this transformation on China's economic growth What is the essence of the Chinese development model and how successfully has it functioned during the past three decades What are the prospects for it

Institutions and Institutional Change in China F. Wang, 2016-01-18 Wang proposes and applies an innovative analytical framework to study the institutional continuity and changes in China More specifically this study examines and explains the peculiar premodernity and the profound modernization process of China On the track of a state led modernization the dragon of China is found to be institutionally entering the nets of the market economy An inquiry of China's labour allocation patterns and their changes serves as the indicator for the institutional analysis

Rural-urban Migration in China Gordon McGranahan, Cecilia Tacoli, 2006 From Family to Market Fei-Ling Wang, 1998 This book analyzes Chinese history politics and economic development through the lens of labor allocation within the world's largest workforce Capturing the peculiarities continuities and changes in the PRC's institutional structure Fei Ling Wang examines the segmented nature of China's labor force today He points to the rare coexistence of four labor allocation patterns the traditional family based system authoritarian state allocation community based labor markets and the emerging national labor market China's enduringly stable yet backward institutional structure was based firmly on a mix of family and state institutions now the addition of market forces highlights the PRC's transitional state Bolstered with rich case study detail and Chinese source material this study argues that the development of labor allocation patterns will profoundly influence China's political and economic development in the coming century

Pacific Affairs, 1929 Includes book reviews and bibliographies The Chinese Economy and its Challenges Charles C.L. Kwong, 2019-12-09 The remarkable transformation of the Chinese economy in terms of its structure and growth has drawn unprecedented attention from academics policy makers and businessmen alike In the past four decades China swiftly transformed from a centrally planned to a market oriented economy with an economic size just behind the US and ahead of Japan Amid commendations for China's economic success offering valuable reform and growth lessons to other developing countries underlying challenges have been emerging which constitute long term risks in shaking China's sustainable success These challenges encompass a wide range of sectors and issues such as the rural urban divide state monopoly policy loans in the banking sector lack of skilled and sophisticated workers environmental degradation etc This book unveils the risks and challenges embedded in China's spectacular economic success and demonstrates that effective handling of these challenges is vital for China to avoid falling into the middle income trap It is elucidated that feasible solutions are available to accommodate these risks and the clue of success lies on the willingness and ability of China's central leaders to implement further reforms This book is a valuable reference for undergraduate and postgraduate students academics and public and business policy makers who are concerned about the current status and future development of the Chinese economy

China's Economy Into The New Century:

Structural Issues And Problems Ding Lu, John Wong, 2002-07-18 In the last two decades of the 20th century China stood out as the world's star performer in economic growth thanks to the market oriented reform that started in 1978. At the turn of the century the Chinese economy faces a series of challenges to sustain its growth and stability. The two decade long rapid growth has effectively strengthened China's economic power and raised its people's standard of living. It has also transformed China from a centrally planned command economy into a socialist market economy which operates increasingly in line with capitalist norms. Major structural problems however remain and are growing acute. Weakness in the fiscal system breeds rent seeking at the local level and causes tension in the state budget. The flawed financial institutions and the biased ownership structure continue to distort resource allocation and cause huge efficiency losses. Inter provincial and inter regional disparity is reaching a level that threatens national unity and social stability. As China joins the World Trade Organization and becomes more integrated into the world economy it urgently needs to improve the domestic business environment and to beef up indigenous industries for foreign competition. This volume is a collection of papers written by scholars at the East Asian Institute to address those problems during the period 1999-2001. The authors with their knowledge and experience in China studies provide in depth observations and professional analyses of some of the most important issues for the Chinese economy at the turn of the century. Some of the observations and analyses lead to enlightening policy recommendations. The solid scholarship combined with the policy orientation of these papers will appeal greatly to researchers in academia, governments and other institutions. The policy oriented and fact based analyses will also be of interest to practitioners in business including business consultants.

Economic Growth, Income Distribution and Poverty Reduction in Contemporary China Shujie Yao, 2004-11-10 Yao reviews the economic development history of contemporary China from 1949 up to today paying special attention to the interface among growth, inequality and poverty reduction.

Population and Labour Market Policies in China's Reform Process Sun Wenkai, 2022-05-05 This book investigates the population and labour management reforms implemented since the reform and opening up of China in the early 1980s, giving insights into the economic and social implications of these reforms and future prospects for population governance. The study examines three major components of China's population management strategy in terms of its history and implementation: the household registration (Hukou) system, family planning policy and the labour market system. Grounded in both qualitative and quantitative analysis, key metrics are introduced to better understand the Hukou system on the one hand while exploring the socio-economic issues arising from the policy, including the economic behaviour of residents, fertility care of older people, entrepreneurship, institutional premiums and gender wage differentials. Based on these investigations, the author advances constructive suggestions to inform policymaking aiming to deepen market oriented reform of the economic system and improve social welfare in China. The title will be a good reference for academics, students and policy makers interested in social policy, labour economics and especially China's population and labour policy and Chinese economy and society.

Labour and the Challenges of Globalization Andreas Bieler, Ingemar Lindberg, Devan Pillay, 2008-02-20 This book critically examines the responses of the working classes of the world to the challenges posed by the neoliberal restructuring of the global economy. Neoliberal globalisation the book argues has created new forms of polarisation in the world. A renewal of working class internationalism must address the situation of both the more privileged segments of the working class and the more impoverished ones. The study identifies new or renewed labour responses among formalised core workers as well as those on the periphery including street traders, homeworkers and other informal sector workers. The book contains ten country studies including India, China, South Korea, Japan, Germany, Sweden, Canada, South Africa, Argentina and Brazil. It argues that workers and trade unions through intensive collaboration with other social forces across the world can challenge the logic of neoliberal globalization.

China's Road to Development N. Maxwell, 2014-06-28 China's Road to Development is a collection of papers by specialists on aspects of China's economy and society. It covers a wide range of subjects from development strategy to the specifics of small scale energy exploitation from the role of women in China's development to the greening of China through great efforts in afforestation. Commenting on the limited issue original edition a special issue of the journal World Development from which this volume has been greatly expanded Dr Knowles President of the Rockefeller Foundation wrote A magnificent collection of essays by very astute and experienced observers covering everything from population control health economic planning trade city planning and rural development to Chinese aid in building the Tanzania Zambia railway. If I could only afford two books on modern China I would get this one.

Towards a Labour Market in China John Knight, Lina Song, 2005-03-24 China's remarkable economic transition and capacity for dynamic growth has stunned the world. Throughout the period of economic reform China has been moving towards the creation of a labour market. The scale of this transformation is unprecedented. New economic incentives vast labour migration draconian retrenchment of state workers and sharply rising wage inequality are all characteristic of this unique transition. Drawing on more than a decade of survey based research the authors systematically document and analyse this important transformation. They use economic and sociological theory institutional analysis and political economy to fully explain the causes pressures obstacles and consequences of the move towards a labour market in China. It is argued that much progress has been made towards the creation of a labour market but that the process is far from complete.

The Soviet and the Chinese Economy Vinod Mehta, 1981
