Rural Essays Andrew Jackson Downing, 1860 First Person Rural Noel Perrin, 1979 Reclaiming the Rural Kim Donehower, Charlotte Hogg, Eileen E Schell, 2012 Reclaiming the Rural moves beyond typical arguments for the preservation abandonment or modernization of rural communities analyzing how communities in the United States Canada and Mexico sustain themselves economically environmentally intellectually and politically through literate action RURAL ESSAYS A. J. DOWNING, 2018 Essays Relating to Agriculture and Rural Affairs. The Fifth Edition, with Corrections and Additions. Andrew Jackson Downing and George William Curtis were two of the most important voices in nineteenth century American literature and culture and their essays on rural life and landscape are still admired and studied today This collection gathers some of their most significant work on the subject providing a fascinating look at the changing attitudes towards nature and the environment during this pivotal time in American history This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it This work is in the public domain in the United States of America and possibly other nations Within the United States you may freely copy and distribute this work as no entity individual or corporate has a copyright on the body of the work Scholars believe and we concur that this work is important enough to be preserved reproduced and made generally available to the public We appreciate your support of the preservation process and thank you for being an important part of keeping this knowledge alive and relevant Rural Essays Andrew Jackson Downing, George William Curtis, 1855 Best Person Rural Noel Perrin, 2006 In 1963 Noel Perrin a 35 year old professor of English at Dartmouth College bought an 85 acre farm in Thetford Center Vermont For the next forty years he spent half his time teaching half writing and half farming That this adds up to three halves I am all too aware he said sounding a characteristic self deprecating note of bittersweet amusement at the chalk on his coat the sweat on his brow and the mud and worse on his boots I love this farm he wrote shortly before his death in 2004 every acre of it The maples the apple trees the cattle the wild turkeys I love the brick farmhouse which I believe to be about 190 years old and the two barns I love the view from the kitchen window and the grander view to be had if you climb Bill Hill the farm s in house mini mountain The thing that delights me most though is that the farm really is a farm It produces a little food every year and most years a little fuel as well It also produced four volumes of essays beginning with First Person Rural 1978 Some of Perrin s pieces are practical how to build a stone wall others philosophical why to build a stone wall One pretends to be about amateur sugar making but it is really a metaphor for reality and illusion Another pretends to be about the country as a retreat but is really about the country as a place to meet the world head on One is a dangerous character sketch of a sow dangerous because as Roy Blount said after reading it It almost made me decide to go ahead and get pigs In short these essays are as good as the literature of farming gets Best Person Rural is a harvest feast bringing together twenty of Perrin s
