Indonesian Houses, 2022-06-20 The traditional houses and settlements of the several hundred ethnic groups of Indonesia are extremely varied and all have their own unique history Underlying this rich diversity are fundamental similarities rooted in the ancient heritage that is shared by all the peoples in the Indonesian field of study The multiplicity of ways in which this heritage is given shape in each local situation bears witness to an amazing creativity in adapting to regional circumstances and social changes Inter ethnic comparison of the architectural structures is a way to arrive at a better understanding of both the shared traditions and the diverging developments In many cases the variety of house forms will reflect successful attempts at one group s making distinct its buildings from those of neighbouring groups in an ongoing ethnic process of what could be called mutual contrasting although sometimes by means of pseudo traditions which have little to do with indigenous customs of the past The contributions to this volume are grouped in four sections The first consists of essays describing approaches to the transformation and variation of houses The second set presents applications of these approaches in case studies of specific Sumatran cultures The third group widens the perspective through the inclusion of a number of cultures from outside Sumatra namely from Flores Sulawesi Kalimantan Palu and Roti The final set deals not so much with houses as with settlements In their pursuit of the cultural dimension of houses the contributions focus on villages and towns exploring their cosmological and symbolic organization

The Materiality of Stone Christopher Tilley, 2020-06-03 With Wayne Bennett From the silky wax qualities of the surfaces of some quartz menhirs to the wood grain textures of others to the golden honeycombed limestones of Malta to the icy frozen waves of the Cambrian sandstone of south east Sweden this book investigates the sensuous material qualities of stone Tactile sensations sonorous qualities colour and visual impressions are all shown to play a vital part in our understanding of the power and significance of prehistoric monuments in relation to their landscapes In The Materiality of Stone Christopher Tilley presents a radically new way of analyzing the significance of both cultural and natural stone in prehistoric European landscapes Tilley's groundbreaking approach is to interpret human experience in a multidimensional and sensuous human way rather than through an abstract analytical gaze The studies range widely from the menhirs of prehistoric Brittany to Maltese Neolithic temples to Bronze Age rock carvings and cairns in southern Sweden Tilley leaves no stone unturned as he also considers how the internal spaces and landscape settings are interpreted in relation to artifacts substances and related places that were deeply meaningful to the people who inhabited them and remain no less evocative today In its innovative approach to understanding human experience through the tangible rocks and stone of our past The Materiality of Stone is both a major theoretical and substantive contribution to the field of material culture studies and the study of European prehistory
