Researching and Teaching the Chinese Language Wei Cai, 2024-08-21 This book offers an in depth exploration of the unique landscape of Chinese language learning and teaching in Canada It is the first to highlight the distinctive features of Chinese language education in the country and to introduce the Canadian approach to teaching and researching Chinese language termed the Canadian school of Chinese education This approach largely unfamiliar to the global academic community is illuminated in this book filling a critical gap in the literature and providing a platform for Canadian voices and perspectives in the field The book delves into original and under investigated areas addressing important issues in Chinese teaching and learning that require more sophisticated research approaches due to advancements in our understanding and the discovery of complex Chinese learner populations Structured into four sections the book offers an overview of Chinese language education in Canada examines comparisons of learning conditions explores interactive dynamics and communication strategies and delves into social and cultural dimensions This book will be invaluable to researchers instructors advanced level undergraduate students and graduate students in the field of Chinese language learning and teaching

On the Learning of Chinese, 2010-01-01 Although more people speak Chinese than any other language on Earth proficiency in Chinese is largely confined to the people who live in or adjacent to the Chinese Mainland and Taiwan and to the ethnic Chinese inhabitants of the various Chinatowns in countries around the world Despite its allure many people find Chinese a hard language to learn including a considerable number of children who learn it as mother tongue The basic units of written Chinese are ideographic symbols called characters and the meaning and pronunciation of each character is determined by the tone attached to it by the speaker Facing the very large number of Chinese characters and words it seems impossible for learners regardless of their native language to master the language other than via rote memorization The attempt to facilitate the route to proficiency in Chinese has understandably attracted the attention of numerous psycholinguistic researchers and educators Using the Theory of Variation as the primary learning framework the authors of this book conducted a number of large scale and robustly designed studies to investigate the relationship between the learning and teaching of Chinese mostly among native speakers However we believe that the results are applicable to the learning of Chinese as a second language Studies into ways of understanding the phonological and orthographical acquisition of characters are reported ways of helping learners come to terms with reading Chinese a textual language that does not always correspond word for word with the spoken discourse are explained and the implications of the evidence for Chinese curriculum and syllabus design are pointedly addressed by the contributors The authors believe that there are effective ways to become skilled in Chinese and that learning Chinese can be pleasurable and interesting They provide empirical evidence for educators parents policymakers and readers interested in Chinese language education They also illuminate the path to the mastery of Chinese in schools and how Chinese should be taught in today s world

Language Policy in the People's Republic of China Minglang Zhou, Hongkai

Sun, 2006-04-11 Language matters in China It is about power identity opportunities and above all passion and nationalism During the past five decades China's language engineering projects transformed its linguistic landscape affecting over one billion people's lives including both the majority and minority populations The Han majority have been juggling between their home vernaculars and the official speech Putonghua a speech of no native speakers and reading their way through a labyrinth of the traditional simplified and Pinyin Roman scripts Moreover the various minority groups have been struggling between their native languages and Chinese maintaining the former for their heritages and identities and learning the latter for quality education and socioeconomic advancement The contributors of this volume provide the first comprehensive scrutiny of this sweeping linguistic revolution from three unique perspectives First outside scholars critically question the parities between constitutional rights and actual practices and between policies and outcomes Second inside policy practitioners review their own project involvements and inside politics pondering over missteps undergoing soul searching and theorizing their personal experiences Third scholars of minority origin give inside views of policy implementations and challenges in their home communities The volume sheds light on the complexity of language policy making and implementing as well as on the politics and ideology of language in contemporary China

The Politics of Language in Chinese Education

Constructing Modern Asian Citizenship Edward Vickers, Krishna Kumar, 2014-12-05

In many non Western contexts modernization has tended to be equated with Westernization and hence with an abandonment of authentic indigenous identities and values This is evident in the recent history of many Asian societies where efforts to modernize spurred on by the spectre of foreign domination have often been accompanied by determined attempts to stamp national variants of modernity with the brand of local authenticity Asian values Chinese characteristics a Japanese cultural essence and so forth Highlighting or exaggerating associations between the more unsettling consequences of modernization and alien influence has thus formed part of a strategy whereby elites in many Asian societies have sought to construct new forms of legitimacy for old patterns of dominance over the masses The apparatus of modern systems of mass education often inherited from colonial rulers has been just one instrument in such campaigns of state legitimation This book presents analyses of a range of contemporary projects of citizenship formation across Asia in order to identify those issues and concerns most central to Asian debates over the construction of modern identities Its main focus is on schooling but also examines other vehicles for citizenship formation such as museums and the internet the role of religion in particular Islam in debates over citizenship and identity in certain Asian societies and the relationship between state centred identity discourses and the experience of increasingly globalized elites With chapters from an international team of contributors this interdisciplinary volume will appeal to students and scholars of Asian culture and society Asian education comparative education and citizenship

The Paper Road Erik Mueggler, 2011-10-15 An absolutely breathtaking book in its thoughtfulness and imaginativeness in the breadth and depth of the research which it entailed in its geographical cultural and historical situatedness and in its profound critical empathy for all of the key players Beautifully and skillfully written Sydney White Associate Professor of Anthropology Asian Studies and Women s Studies at Temple University The Paper Road is an eloquent even haunting narrative of the relationships between colonial explorers scientists and their native collaborators that makes vivid the theme of colonial intimacy It speaks to scholars working on Chinese minorities and frontier relations to historians of comparative colonialism to experts on Tibet and Buddhism and probably also simply to lovers of tales of mountains and exploration Charlotte Furth Professor Emerita of Chinese History University of Southern California

Creating Standards Dmitry Bondarev, Alessandro Gori, Lameen Souag, 2019-04-15 Manuscript cultures based on Arabic script feature various tendencies in standardisation of orthography script types and layout Unlike previous studies this book steps outside disciplinary and regional boundaries and provides a typological cross cultural comparison of standardisation processes in twelve Arabic influenced writing traditions where different cultures languages and scripts interact A wide range of case studies give insights into the factors behind uniformity and variation in Judeo Arabic in Hebrew script South Palestinian Christian Arabic New Persian Aljamiado of the Spanish Moriscos Ottoman Turkish a single multilingual Ottoman manuscript Sino Arabic in northwest China Malay Jawi in the Moluccas Kanuri and Hausa in Nigeria Kabyle in Algeria and Ethiopian Fida script as used to transliterate Arabic One of the findings of this volume is that different domains of manuscript cultures have distinct paths of standardisation so that orthography tends to develop its own standardisation principles irrespective of norms applied to layout and script types This book will appeal to readers interested in manuscript studies sociolinguistics literacy studies and history of writing

History of Linguistics 2011 Vadim Kasevich, Yuri A. Kleiner, Patrick Sériot, 2014-08-29 This volume brings together a selection of papers presented at the 12th International Conference on the History of the Language Sciences ICHoLS XII held in St Petersburg Russia 28 August 2 September 2011 It begins with contributions on 17th century rationalist ideas and practical grammar writing and then covers a great variety of 18th and 19th century topics from Western grammars of Chinese to Saussure's remarks on semiology of the years 1881 1891 The most noteworthy feature however is an entire section devoted to linguistics in Russia from the early Soviet period until the 1950s including attempts to establish a Marxist view of language as well as phases to critically adapt Western ideas and at times efforts to participate successfully in international linguistic scholarship both in phonetics and semantics

Sounds

Interesting J. C. Wells, 2014-09-25 Sounds Interesting explores a range of current and widely researched topics such as pronunciation teaching intonation spelling and accents      Multiliteracies in Motion David R. Cole, Darren Lee Pullen, 2009-12-04 The realities of new technological and social conditions since the 1990s demand a new approach to literacy teaching Looking onward from the original statement of aims of the multiliteracies movement in 1996 this volume brings together top quality scholarship and research that has embraced the notion and features new contributions by many of the originators of this approach to literacy Drawing on large research projects and empirical evidence the authors explore practical and educational issues that relate to multiliteracies such as assessment pedagogy and curriculum The viewpoint taken is that multiliteracies is a complementary socio cultural approach to the new literacies that includes pedagogy and learning The differences are addressed from a multiliteracies perspective one that does not discount or undermine the new literacies but shows new ways in which they are complementary Computers and the internet are transforming the way we work and communicate and the very notion of literacy itself This volume offers frontline information and a vital update for those wishing to understand the evolution of multiliteracies and the current state of literacy theory in relation to it
