

Converting Volume

We measure volume in lots of different units

The unit usually depends on how much volume we need to measure

If we are measuring a lot of something, it makes sense to use a bigger unit like 1 cup or 1 bag

This could be the flour or sugar in a recipe

If we are measuring a small volume of something, we use smaller units like tablespoons and teaspoons

Salting powder and spices are usually measured this way

Spoons and Cups

Converting Volume

I only need 1 of a cup of sugar, how many tablespoons will I need?

Why would it be hard to measure a tablespoon that size for half the amount of sugar?
