The Planning Moment Sarah Blacker, Emily Brownell, Anindita Nag, Martina Schlünder, Sarah Van Beurden, 2024-05-07 Empires and their aftermaths were massive planning institutions in the past two hundred years the natural and social sciences emerged at least in part as modes of knowledge production for imperial planning Yet these connections are frequently under emphasized in the history of science and its corollary fields The Planning Moment explores the myriad ways plans and planning practices pervade recent global history. The book is built around twenty-seven brief case studies that explore the centrality of planning in colonial and postcolonial environments, relationships and contexts through a range of disciplines: the history of science, science and technology studies, colonial and postcolonial studies, urban studies, and the history of knowledge. If colonialism made certain landscapes, populations, and institutions legible while obscuring others, The Planning Moment reveals the frequently disruptive and violent processes of erasure in imperial planning by examining how common sense was produced and how the intransigence of planning persists long after decolonization. In recognizing the resistance and subversion that often met colonial plans, the book makes visible a range of strategies and techniques by which planning was modified and reappropriated and by which decolonial futures might be imagined.

Introduction to Middle Eastern Law Chibli Mallat, 2007-07-12. This book provides an introduction to the laws of the Middle East, defining the contours of a field of study that deserves to be called Middle Eastern law. It introduces Middle Eastern law as a reflection of legal styles, many of which are shared by Islamic law and the laws of Christian and Jewish Near Eastern communities. It offers a detailed survey of the foundations of Middle Eastern Law, using court archives and an array of legal sources from the earliest records of Hammurabi to the massive compendia of law in the Islamic classical age through to the latest decisions of Middle Eastern high courts. It focuses on the way legislators and courts conceive of law and apply it in the Middle East. It builds on the author's extensive legal practice with the aim of introducing the Middle Eastern law's main sources and concepts in a manner accessible to non-specialist legal scholars and practitioners alike. The book begins with an exploration of the depth and variety of Middle Eastern law, introducing the concepts of shari'a, fiqh, and qanun, which all mean law, and dwelling on Islamic law as the common law of the Middle East. It provides a historical introduction to the contemporary Middle East, exploring political systems, constitutional law, judicial review, the laws of tort and obligations, commercial law, including Islamic banking, company law, capital markets, and commercial arbitration, and examines legislative reform in family law and the position of women in the legal system. The author considers the interaction between Islamic and Western laws and includes a bibliography designed for further research into the jurisdictions and themes explored throughout the book.

Reverberations Yael Navaro, Zerrin Özlem Biner, Alice von Bieberstein, Seda Altuğ, 2021-12-21. The turn to the nonhuman in the humanities and social sciences has arguably been mobilized through a washing away of political violence, its histories, and its traces. The volume generates a new framework for the study of political violence and its protracted aftermath by attending through innovative ethnographic and historical studies to its distribution extension and endurance across time space materialities and otherworldly dimensions as well as its embodiment in subjectivities discourses and imaginations Collectively in the study of political violence the contributions focus on human agencies and experiences in engagement with nonhuman entities such as objects land fields houses buildings treasures trees spirits saints and prophets In a variety of contexts the scholars herein ask the crucial question What can be learned about political violence by analyzing it in the terrain of relationality between human beings and nonhuman entities How are things such as objects spaces natural phenomena or spiritual beings entwined in histories of political violence And vice versa how are histories of political violence implicated in nonhuman things

Ottoman Refugees, 1878-1939 Isa Blumi,2013-09-12

In the first half of the 20th century throughout the Balkans and Middle East a familiar story of destroyed communities forced to flee war or economic crisis unfolded. Often these refugees of the Ottoman Empire—Christians, Muslims, and Jews—found their way to new continents, forming an Ottoman diaspora that had a remarkable ability to reconstitute and even expand the ethnic, religious, and ideological diversity of their homelands. Ottoman Refugees 1878-1939 offers a unique study of a transitional period in world history experienced through these refugees living in the Middle East, the Americas, South East Asia, East Africa, and Europe. Isa Blumi explores the tensions emerging between those trying to preserve a world almost entirely destroyed by both the nation state and global capitalism and the agents of the so-called Modern era.

Colonial Land Policies in Palestine 1917-1936

Martin P. Bunton, 2007-04-05 In this book Martin Bunton focuses on the way in which the Palestine Mandate was part of a broader British imperial administration a fact often masked by Jewish immigration and land purchase in Palestine His meticulous research reveals clear links to colonial practice in India Sudan and Cyprus amongst other places He argues that land officials views on sound land management were derived from their own experiences of rural England and that this was far more influential on the shaping of land policies than the promise of a Jewish National Home Bunton reveals how the British were intent on preserving the status quo of Ottoman land law which when few Britons could read Ottoman or were well grounded in its legal codes led to a series of translations interpretations and hence new applications of land law The sense of importance the British attributed to their work surveying and registering properties and transactions is captured in the efforts of British officials to microfilm all of their records at the height of the Second World War Despite this however land policies remained in flux
